Japs Renew Naval Battle In Solomons

FLEET MAKES FRESH EFFORT AT RECAPTURE

Three Aircraft Carriers and Four Battleships Move on Area, London Reports.

MILNE BAY FIGHTS ON

Australians, Aided by U. S. Troops In Fierce Battle On New Guinea.

(By International News Service)

A renewal of the naval battle in the Solomon islands is rapidly developing, the naval correspondent of the Daily Express declared today in London.

The third phase of the struggle is coming to a head, he declared, as three Japanese aircraft-carriers and four battleships are preparing to resume the offensive against the Allied fleet and the American Marine forces holding bases in the Tulagi area.

The first phase was the American occupation which was followed by the abortive enemy effort to recapture the seized bases.

Meanwhile it was agreed in Washington that despite withdrawal of the Nipponese invasion forces from the Tulagi area, naval analysts today asserted that the Japanese undoubtedly would renew their attempts to oust U. S. forces from their foothold in the strategic Solomon islands in the southwest Pacific.

Even abrupt termination of the "large scale" battle reported by the navy last week was construed by some naval experts as an indication that the enemy may be regrouping his forces for further thrusts after testing American naval and aerial defenses.

Although unofficial advices from New Zealand and Australia reported that a gigantic battle still was raging on land-sea and in the air, a navy spokesman last night commented:

"Up to 5:40 p. m. (EWT) no

Tells How Marines Dynamited Japs From Dugouts In Fierce Solomon Raids That Cost Enemy 2,000 Troops

(An eye-witness story of the brilliant offensive in the Solomon Islands by an Allied Naval task force and American Marines is given in the following dispatch by Richard Tregaskis, International News Service correspondent who accompanied the expedition. The account, delayed in transmission, was written August 12. Since that date the Allied forces have extended their operations in the enemy strongholds.)

(INS Staff Correspondent)

TULAGI, Solomon Islands, Aug. 12—(Delayed)—The conquest of the Solomon islands by American Marines will rank with the great war sagas of history.

Tough, hardened and modernly trained Americans swarmed over the beaches of Tulagi early on the morning of Aug. 7 under cover of the guns of the Allied fleet.

They met a strong and determined enemy who fought bitterly from dugouts and entrenchments.

But the conquest of the island bases today is complete except for the extermination of a handful of Japanese snipers on Tulagi.

Tacticians would call the feat of the marines "impossible" but that is a word they don't know.

Difficult jobs they do quickly. The impossible takes a little longer.

So, in one of the fiercest and most intense battles of its kind in history, the marines took Tulagi, Gavutu and Tanambogo, honeycombed with seemingly impregnable Japanese dugouts, and hill positions which swept our force with a deadly crossfire.

A new crop of marine heroes, ranking with the most exalted from Tripoli to Belleau wood, was born in the three-day, knockdown, dragout battle preceding our victory.

I visited scenes of the fiercest fighting,

Stronghold of Hitler Party Ripped In Raid

Nuremberg Tank Factory and Aluminum Works Blasted In Sweep That Wrecks Saarbruecken Communications; 600 Planes In Night Attack.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Hundreds of British night bombers fired two more reich industrial centers in the mounting aerial offensive against Germany, the air ministry disclosed today with the announcement that Nuremberg and Saarbruecken were attacked in force.

Berlin acknowledged the raids and claimed that 36 bombers were shot down, indicating that a force of 600 to 700 planes were over the German industrial area for the second successive night.

Nuremberg, traditional stronghold of the Nazi party and scene of Nazi gatherings and momentous addresses by Adolf Hitler, has been converted into a war-production center since the war lords took over Germany.

The targets there were the great tank factory, aluminum works, heavy electrical equipment plants and a railway repair shop.

Saarbruecken is one of Germany's chief industrial towns and an important communications center.

Both towns have been free of the RAF wrath since November, 1940.

Saarbruecken is on the French border, 300 miles from London. Nuremberg is 200 miles to the east in the very heart of Germany.

The air ministry admitted that 30 British planes were lost, and on the basis of recent losses of between 4 and 5 per cent of the attacking force, the RAF sent at least 600 bombers against the two German strongholds.

This at least matched the number estimated to have bombed the reich Thursday night when 30 bombers failed to return.

The loss of 60 planes in two nights was believed due in some part to the bright moonlight through which the RAF raiders attacked their objectives.

In the low-level assault on Gdynia, the British bombers were subjected to terrific anti-aircraft fire.

Large RAF formations winged their way across the channel this morning in the direction of northern France, flying very high.

Meanwhile, an air battle seemed to be taking place in and out of cloud formations in the same area.

Loud explosions were heard from the direction of the French coast but it was believed that these were caused by practicing German defense guns.

The attack was launched while smoke still rose over Kassel and the Baltic port of Gdynia which were bombed Thursday night by "a strong force" of several hundred RAF long-range planes.

Tempo of the air offensive against Germany and the occupied coastal areas of western Europe is being stepped up rapidly as bombers, fighter-bombers and fighting planes of the RAF and the U. S. Air Corps strike on an around-the-clock schedule.

Friday's daylight sweeps over France were featured by another flying fortress raid on Meaulte where an airplane factory was blasted in a high-level attack.

As in all previous raids carried out by the heavily-armed fortresses, all returned safely to their bases.

American and British fighter and fighter-bomber squadrons swarmed over the channel throughout the past 24 hours,

CITY GRANTED $360,617 FROM COUNTY TAXES

Allotment Less Than Was Asked But More Than Original Request Called For.

While the city of Mansfield will not receive the full amount asked for 1943 municipal operations it will get $21,500 more than it originally planned to ask, according to certifications today to City Auditor Paul L. Kelley from the Richland county budget commission.

Allowances from real estate tax to the city will total $360,617.63 whereas on July 15 council, in special session, boosted the administration's appropriation estimate from $339,103 to $386,113. The final 1943 requests was for considerably more than the 1942 budget of $344,233.

"The city is in a healthy financial condition," Auditor Kelley declared today, "and while the bond retirement request for $64,756.25 has been cut to $41,300, all obligations can be easily met."

To provide for retirement of bonds issued in 1941 for purchase of new fire department equipment, $29,500 will be allocated to the city. The city's general fund will receive $181,130, fire pension fund and police pension fund $11,800 each, only slight reductions being noted in each item.

In compiling the revised appropriations ordinance adopted July 15 council jumped the street repair and materials fund from $2,460 to $50,000 in contemplation of transfers to other uses in event government priorities prevent extensive street construction programs.

DELAY TAX BILL

Senators Split Sharply on Corporation Levy Plan.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The senate finance committee today split sharply over the treasury's newest corporation tax program, with the result that a decision on revision of corporation tax rates in the $6,271,000,000 tax bill was delayed until next week.

Vigorous opposition to the treasury's demand to increase the house 45 per cent normal-surtax rates on corporations to 55 per cent was the chief stumbling block.

Some committee members contended that many corporations could not continue in business under such a heavy tax rate, even though many "cushions" are proposed by the treasury, and some already have been adopted by the committee.

The treasury's proposal calls for the 55 per cent rate, together with a 90 per cent excess profits levy, but with an overall limit of 80 per cent on a corporation's tax.

Chances Are, Army Won't Care Much For These Fellows

MEDIA, Pa. —(INS)— Sentence was deferred today pending action by a draft board on two men who admitted they wooed a pretty nurse so they could rob her of $63.

Clarence Lawrence, 35, said he met the nurse, Betty Heyniger, in a Media nursing home where he was employed. He told Charles F. Moyer, 21, of Chester, the girl "sometimes has a lot of money on her" and the pair decided to rob her.

"Lawrence took the girl out," Moyer told the court. "I hid in the bushes. I had a toy pistol.

"They came down the road, hand in hand. They sat on a culvert. Lawrence struck two matches and held them up as a signal to me. I stepped out with the toy pistol and held her up."

Judge Henry G. Sweney declared it was "a pretty low trick' and was about to give the men the limit, 20 years, but an attorney pleaded that both may be inducted into the army shortly and sentence was deferred.

KAISER SPEEDS SHIPBUILDING

Plans Keel-to-Launching In 18 Days After Setting 24-Day Record.

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Henry J. Kaiser, the construction wizard, pointed his shipyards toward an 18-day keel-to-launching schedule for liberty ships today after one of his yards set a 24-day record.

Meanwhile, he prepared for new interviews with government authorities on his plan to build a fleet of 500 giant cargo planes for the armed services and denied that he had bought structural steel in the "black market."

Kaiser announced he would make another trip to Washington after watching completion of the world's fastest shipbuilding job, launching of the 10,500-ton liberty ship "John Fitch" 24 days after its keel was laid at his Richmond yard No. 2.

The record bettered a 26-day job completed only the night before, without fanfare, in one of Kaiser's Oregon yards. The record previously was 36 days, and until a year ago no boat of

HITS POLL TAX

Norris Urges Test of Law In Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Opponents of legislation to wipe out the poll tax as a qualification for voting were challenged today by Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) to put the issue "squarely up to the United States supreme court."

The legislative veteran said he was "absolutely convinced" of the constitutionality of a bill to prohibit states from collecting poll taxes as a qualification to vote for national officials, but recognized "the sincerity of others holding an opposite view."

"I've always thought the tax unjust and unfair," Norris said. "I'd like to see congress pass legislation that will put the matter up to the courts."

WOOSTER FIRM TO BUILD PLANT

Gets $3,500,000 Construction Contract For Aluminum War Plant at Newark.

Work on the construction of the huge aluminum plant to be established near Newark was getting underway today as a Wooster firm announced that it had received a $3,500,000 contract for preliminary work at the site.

This was the first activity on the project since announcement on July 9 that the Aluminum Corporation of America would erect a $22,000,000 plant at Heath in Licking county. The new plant, when completed, will employ about 3,000 workers.

The contract for construction work, not including steel work, was given to the Holmes Construction company of Wooster. Announcement of the contract was made by Arthur Miller, president of the firm.

Miller said that his company was moving heavy construction machinery from Pittsburgh and expects to employ 1,000 men on the project within two months.

The Wooster firm is to build the foundations for the aluminum plant, sewers, waterlines, drainage, roads and other construction.

U. S. SUES AP TO FORCE SALE OF WIRE SERVICE

Lists Association as First Among News-Gathering Agencies of Nation.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The government, depicting the Associated Press as premier among news services of the United States and contending that a newspaper without it suffers competitive disadvantages, today had asked federal district court for an order to force "the AP" to serve any newspaper willing to pay the cost.

The Chicago Sun was mentioned specifically as having been unable to obtain membership in the Associated Press; likewise the Washington Times-Herald.

A civil complaint filed by the government in the Southern New York district court dealt with corporate matters solely. It paid high tribute to the operations of the Associated Press and emphasized its reputation for impartiality, accuracy, thoroughness and speed.

The government's complaint, in brief, made these allegations:

1. Those provisions of the AP by-laws which exclude competitors of existing members from membership and the AP news, illegally restrain and monopolize interstate commerce in news and illegally restrain the interstate commerce of newspapers which are prevented from obtaining AP news;

2. The provision of the AP by-laws requiring each of nearly 1,300 members to furnish local news gathered by its own staff exclusively to the AP illegally re-

COLUMBUS—(INS)—With every indication of a "shakeup" in the offing, Phil Hannah, 38, of Cleveland, new secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Federation of Labor today announced that a "strengthening" program is being mapped for the OFL.

Initial step in the expected "shakeup" came when Herbert Hillebrandt, educational director of the federation, resigned effective Sept. 15, to make way for someone representing the Hannah faction which swept the OFL elections Thursday.

CHECK: Nazis Balked, Turned Back by Soviets at Stalingrad

(By United Press)

MOSCOW — Accelerated counter-attacks checked the Germans on the principal sectors of the 125-mile Stalingrad front today, and hurled them back on a sector northwest of the city.

At many points, dispatches to the army newspaper Red Star said, the Russians were taking the initiative—sensing coming German attacks and counter-attacking before they could be executed.

Fresh Rumanian and German reinforcements streamed to the Stalingrad front as soldiers and tanks beat against Russian defenses bulwarked by citizens' armies, and found them unyielding.

New German tank and infantry divisions were thrown into battle northwest of Stalingrad several days ago. German losses mounted high into the thousands, and one dispatch said many corpses were lying on the ground directly in front of Russian positions.

The Red army smashed on into Rzhev, in their big central front offensive. Front line dispatches said they shoved the Germans back street by street and house by house in that city, 115 miles northwest of Moscow, although enemy resistance steadily stiffened.

Having rushed up fresh infantry and tank reinforcements in an effort to keep Rzhev, key point of the Rzhev-Gzhatsk-Vyazma salient, from falling into Russian hands, the Germans were counter-attacking on several sectors.

But they had not at any place been able to force the Russians from their reconquered positions. The Russians repelled the counter-attacks, consolidated the positions and moved on to better ones.

They were taking a heavy toll of enemy machines and men on all sectors of the new offensive front, and taking many prisoners. Many

BURIAL: Duke of Kent Laid to Rest as Four Kings See Rites

LONDON—(INS)—With the kings of England, Norway, Greece, Yugoslavia and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands in attendance, the body of the Duke of Kent was laid to rest today in historic St. George's chapel.

The Duchess of Kent, formerly Princes Marina of Greece, was near collapse at the funeral service but bravely pulled herself together.

The Duke of Kent, 39, was killed with 14 other persons in the crash of a giant Sunderland flying boat in Scotland last Monday. He served as a commodore of the RAF and was on his way to Iceland on official duties.

The duchess sobbed bitterly as she was assisted from the chapel after the ceremony by Queen Elizabeth. Dowager Queen Mary was visibly shaken as her youngest son was laid to rest.

The services were confined to the royal family and a few close friends. There were two simple wreaths of wildflowers, one from the king and queen and one from the Duchess of Kent.

The ceremony was most moving. King George's eyes were filled with unshed tears as he sprinkled

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Another side of Hollywood: The assistant director walks into the little workshop, hands Albert Grumes a couple of aviators' badges adorned with the Rising Sun of Japan, says, "Can we have a couple more like this by 1 o'clock?"

"Sure," says Albert Grumes.

Coons

He lays aside the finger ring he's been working on—glass diamond and ruby in mounting of silver filigree—and gets to work. The ring he says, is for no particular picture. It will go into stock.

Albert Grumes is Paramount's jeweler. No other studio has one. He is the only member of the International Jewelery Workers union employed in the movies. His job began with Cecil B. DeMille because DeMille, in 1931, was making "The Sign of the Cross" and the picture, ancient Roman, required jewels in carload lots—or enough to justify a full-time jeweler. DeMille is still his best customer—because C. B. still makes historical movies.

ALBERT'S workshop is a file of military insignia, naval decorations, police badges from all parts of the world. Metals, glass, bakelite; these are his materials. (Since the war he no longer uses copper but silver.) His jobs have ranged from tiny buttons to the pair of elaborate necklaces Joan Bennett wore in "Artists and Models"—he spent a month on each, using 2,400 stones in the pair. Movie jewels — especially rhinestones for diamonds - usually photograph better than the authentic stones.

Albert Grumes came to America in 1910 from Riga, then part of Czarist Russia, after four years of strict, unpaid apprenticeship in his trade. "Our jails," he says, "are better than that shop—we worked 12 hours, cleaned out the place, pulled down our cots and slept in the shop." But he learned various phases of jewelry-making, and in spare time he took new courses making him proficient in all the 20-odd branches of the work. He earns close to $100 a week.

HE WORKED for jewelers in Chicago and New York before coming to Hollywood. He likes it here because of the endless variety. Claudette Colbert he considers the star most fond of jewels. Mae West is equally jewel-conscious—but in a flashier way in keeping with her act Marlene Dietrich is "finicky" about her jewels.

WILL RELEASE DELUXE MODEL REFRIGERATORS

WPB to 'Unfreeze' 100,000 Expensive Units Unsuited To Defense Needs.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The war production board, it was learned today, soon will release more than 100,000 electric refrigerators "frozen" in the hands of manufacturers and distributors.

Dealers and members of the industry already have been informed of the forthcoming action.

It was understood, however, that the refrigerators to be released for distribution to consumers will be the expensive, deluxe models which are considered unsuitable for defense housing and similar needs.

The original "freeze" order was issued by the WPB last February, and production was halted two months later to conserve critical raw materials and convert the industry to war production.

It was estimated that approximately 600,000 domestic, mechanical refrigerators were frozen in possession of distributors and manufacturers. Dealers were permitted to release 75,000 units to persons who placed orders before the "freeze."

Of the total supply held by distributors and manufacturers, approximately 250,000 are the deluxe models. It was indicated that a high percentage of these will be unfrozen and channeled to dealers for distribution.

Despite the partial relaxation of the "freeze," a considerable supply of refrigerators will be retained to meet the needs of the armed forces and as a "reserve" for possible use after 1943.

The release is not expected to materially alter the earlier warning from WPB officials that Civilian demands for household refrigeration probably will have to be filled for the duration by manufacturers of old-fashioned ice boxes.

Nearly 495,000 ice-refrigerators were scheduled for production in the year from July 1942, to July 1943. Although the WPB placed restrictions on the use of metal in ice boxes, manufacturers were expected to shift quickly to wood for wood base cabinets.

Wild to Report How 'Well Baby' Clinic Has Grown

At this afternoon's meeting of the Richland county board of health, Dr. W. B. Wild city-county health commissioner will report on the growth of the county-wide well baby clinic which is held on the second and fourth Thursday afternoons each month.

This week brought the largest number of babies and pre-school children yet recorded, Wild will report.

There were 26 babies under one year old and 24 between the ages of one and six. The total of 50 included 29 new cases, with a number coming from county areas for the first time.

Of the pre school group, seven will enter school for the first time in September. All of these, Dr. Wild said, have been vaccinated against smallpox and all but two have received diphtheria immunization treatment.

Meeting of the city board of health, regularly scheduled for next Monday evening at the office of Mayor W. J. Locke, has been postponed to Sept. 14.

WOULD FREEZE SECURITY TAX

Ohio Chamber of Commerce Opposes Doubling of Present Rates.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—The Ohio Chamber of Commerce has launched a campaign to obtain legislation that would freeze social security tax rates at the existing levels of 1 per cent on both employe and employer, Executive Vice President George B. Chandler announced today.

The Ohio Chamber contended that automatic doubling of the present 1 per cent rates to 2 per cent on both employe and employer, effective January 1, 1943, under the internal revenue code, is unnecessary for social security purposes.

Chandler said that $60,000,000 was paid in old age insurance taxes by Ohio employes and employers during 1941. He added that with the present rate the reserve fund exceeds the amount calculated under the formula placed in the law to provide adequate protection for the fund.

"In view of this situation an increase in the social security tax rate would be unwarranted," Chandler said. "And especially so, when at the same time people must adjust their finances to meet the war tax program."

URGES DEFERMENT FROM DRAFT OF ALL STUDENTS OF MEDICINE

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Joseph C. Rosier (D) W. Va., today called upon the selective service system to give serious consideration to permanent deferment from the draft of all medical students, if the nation's health is to be properly guarded.

"Small communities everywhere are being stripped of their physicians and surgeons," Rosier said.

"The large cities are losing most of their younger and middle-aged practitioners."

Rosier, an educator for 51 years, has been on leave of absence as president of Fairmont college at Fairmont, W. Va., while serving in the senate. He also is a member of the committee on education and labor.

"If the war is long," he said, "and we draft the men of 18 and upward, we will have no new 'crop' of medical men entering pre-medical courses after this September except those few who begin at ages under 18.

"Those entering the pre-medical courses at the best or Class A schools will not complete their training before 1949 if they follow the usual seven-year course."

As safeguards against a breakdown in national health during the war, Rosier said these things probably would have to be done:

1. Cut medical courses, especially pre-medical work to less than four years.

2. Establish more dispensary clinics in both large and small communities to fit their particular needs.

3. Advise the public itself on how to guard its own health, through programs of education.

4. Assign the annual "crop" of medical men by quota to certain areas, with army and navy replacements being made by careful selection.

Temporary halting of a troop train in the Pennsylvania railroad yards here yesterday permitted a Mansfield young woman to enjoy a brief reunion with a husband being transferred from a far-off camp. A merchant whose business is near the tracks, asked one of the soldiers where the unit was from. When advised, he realized his niece's husband was at that post. Hurriedly, he notified the niece and rushed her to the railroad. With cooperation of comrades, the husband soon was located and was overjoyed by the chance reunion.

Richland county's dogs are wearing a new kind of tag these days to help save steel. When the county auditor's supply of tags ran out recently, new ones made of plastic material were sent in place of the metal tags that have been used for a number of years. Although lighter in weight and less sturdy, the new tags apparently are holding up almost as well, for the auditor has issued only one duplicate for approximately 500 that have been sold.

OBSERVERS SEE SAVING IN SHIPPING

Point to Implication In FDR Remark That Meatless Days Loom For Nation.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Because it is closer to the European battleground than most other sources of supply, the United States may have to share a larger portion of its meat—with American armed forces overseas and with Great Britain than previously expected.

This is the implication of a statement by President Roosevelt yesterday that Americans may be asked to observe a meatless day each week. Meatless days would be one way of reducing American consumption to make larger supplies available for movement across the Atlantic.

The United Nations have four major sources of meat supplies—the United States, Argentina, Australia and New Zealand.

If a part of the supplies now being obtained for Great Britain—and American troops stationed there—from Argentina, Australia and New Zealand can be supplied by the United States, a saving in oceanic shipping and possibly ship losses would result.

Mr. Roosevelt said if this country provided greater supplies by observing a meatless day each week, from 20 to 30 fewer ships would be needed to transport meat to overseas forces and to Great Britain from other nations. These ships, he said could be used to transport planes, tanks, ammunition and other war materials to fighting fronts.

Meatless days represent one of several plans considered by the government for cutting consumption. The office of price administration has been directed by the war production board's foods requirements committee to formulate plans for consumer rationing for possible future use.

The foods committee is working on plans for allocating supplies among three categories of demand—the military forces, the United Nations and American civilians. A third of the total meat supply, the foods committee said, may be needed for military and United Nations.

The remaining two-thirds is insignificant, food authorities say, to provide Americans with all they would like to have and could buy with their present record volume of buying power.

Tire Thieves Get Into Plant Garage, 'Hi-Jack' Two Cars

Tire hi-jackers continued their forays yesterday, their latest operations including theft of wheels as well as rubber.

On complaint to police by Eva Hampson, 641 West Fourth street, that a wheel and tire had been stolen from her car parked in the Westinghouse garage on East Fifth street, Lieutenant Bruce Friday and Patrolman Russell Miles investigated. The coupe had been jacked up and the left rear wheel stolen.

Further police investigation revealed that a similar raid had been made on the auto of John H. Friday, Mansfield R. D. 3, which was parked next to the Hampson car.

Several similar thefts have been reported to police during the last two weeks. This morning Patrolman Clare W. Kyler, acting identification officer, photographed finger prints found on the Hampson and Friday cars in an effort to trace the thieves.

The thefts occurred between 5 a. m. and 2 p. m. yesterday.

smashing German air bases and shipping and industrial plants working for the German war machine.

The air ministry said the 600-plane raid on Kassel was "concentrated and effective." The town, which lies 110 miles east of blasted Cologne, is one of Germany's most important rail communications centers, linking Berlin with the manufacturing towns of the Ruhr and Rhineland districts.

Britain's biggest bombers flew the 1,800-mile round trip to pound Nazi shipping at Gdynia. The battleship Gneisenau and the uncompleted aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin have been reported lodged at the Baltic port which the Germans considered a safe refuge.

Heavy weather interfered with the attack and the crew of one bomber reported they had to make twelve runs over the target before they were certain of the objective.

RAF losses in the Kassel and Gdynia attacks were announced as 30 bombers and two fighters.

The American fortresses were accompanied on their flight by squadrons of RAF fighters, American Eagle formations and American Air corps pilots in Spitfires

They met only slight opposition and this emphasized the Berlin radio announcement that the Luftwaffe in western Europe is "somewhat handicapped" by the necessity of sending most of its air strength to the Russian front.

The fighter escort for the fortresses covered a range of about 300 miles on the Meaulte raid—about the same distance flown by the fortress escort on Thursday's raid on Axis shipping at Rotterdam.

Pilots on the Kassel raid reported that they had gone in at low levels of 1,500 to 5,000 feet. The first planes over the target dropped incendiaries which started huge fires that made the town daylight-bright for succeeding waves.

The Spitfire fighter squadrons. Hurricane converted bombers and American and British medium bombers have made almost incessant raid on the French coastal area since Friday morning.

Targets were airfields, trains, rail centers and port facilities.

KAISER SPEEDS SHIPBUILDING

Plans Keel-to-Launching In 18 Days After Setting 24-Day Record.

the liberty ship size had been built in less than 100 days.

Kaiser predicted that within a few months his yards would be building liberty ships in 18 days from keel-laying to launching.

Talking to reporters after the launching of the "John Fitch," Kaiser indicated that he now is more concerned over his plane program than his steel troubles with the office of price administration. He declined to give details, but indicated he and Howard Hughes, aircraft designer, speed flyer and his partner in the proposed cargo plane program have worked out a well-rounded plan to place before Washington officials.

Kaiser denied that there was a "black market" in steel or that his companies had made iregular purchases. The OPA at Cleveland has obtained an injunction against him forbidding purchases in violation of price ceilings.

"There is no such thing as a 'black market' in steel," Kaiser said. Neither I nor anyone connected with me has ever bought steel on this so-called 'black market.'

"What is called a 'black market' is nothing more than perhaps a hundred thousand dealers, customers of the steel corporations who carry stocks of steel in their warehouses for sale at ceiling prices specified by Leon Henderson.

"We have not at any time paid prices in excess of those established and approved by Henderson . . . I am only interested in winning the war and winning it as quickly as possible."

FDR PREPARES MONDAY TALK

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Washington and the nation today awaited the first of three speeches by President Roosevelt which will outline the White House plans to solidify America's war effort and combat inflation by controlling wages and farm prices.

Mr. Roosevelt was working over the draft of the first speech, to be delivered Monday at the dedication of the new naval hospital at nearby Bethesda, Md. Then, on Sept. 3, he will address the International Student Service meeting in Washington, and on Labor day send a special anti-inflation message to congress and make a fire-side chat the same night which will climax one of the busiest speech-making weeks the White House has ever known outside of a national political campaign.

reports have been received in the navy department to indicate there has been any new action in the Solomon area."

There was no further word from the navy during the night.

What appeared at first as a powerful Japanese onslaught to oust U. S. Marines from islands they captured in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area apparently dwindled later into a strong test thrust by the enemy.

The navy in a communique on Thursday reported that the "large scale" sea battle had ended—with undetermined results—and that a Nipponese invasion force had withdrawn from the Tulagi area after being pounded by American land-based planes.

Heavy Fight Rages In Milne Bay Area

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (U.P.) — Australian troops supported by a small number of United States army service troops have attacked the Japanese in the Milne bay area of southeastern New Guinea and heavy fighting is in progress, it was announced today.

It was believed to be the first time American ground forces had been in action in the Australian zone.

The Australians, seasoned men under their own commander, were doing the real fighting and there seemed an air of expectation at headquarters that the Japanese, isolated after retirement of their invasion convoy, might suffer a defeat within the next few days.

Veterans of the Australian imperial force who had fought for months in the thickest battles in the Middle East, formed the backbone of the Allied forces and they were reinforced with men of the main Australian army trained in jungle warfare.

Fighting was developing along the north shore of the bay, on a peninsula 35 miles long where the Japanese made their landing in an isolated, undefended area.

United States army air force medium bombers attacked the enemy positions in force from low altitude yesterday, put all bombs in the target area and started numerous fires.

The mediums were backed by army heavy bombers and by a crack corps of Australian pilots.

So heavy had been the attack of the Allied planes that the enemy invasion convoy seemed to have withdrawn entirely, leaving the landing force without naval protection.

A spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur revealed today that the convoy had been made up of three medium transports with a naval convoy including one cruiser.

The cruiser was heavily damaged by bombs and it was believed to have sunk.

U.S. Bombers Damage Jap Hanoi Base

CHUNGKING—(INS)—American bombing planes made another damaging attack on the Japanese base at Hanoi, Indo-China, Friday afternoon, it was reported today in Chungking. Two oil and ammunition dumps were destroyed and a bridge and three miles of track on the railroad to Lokhai demolished, the reports said.

FARM PRICES IN BIG CLIMB

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Farm prices today stood at 163 per cent of the pre World war level.

The agricultural department reported that higher prices for meat animals, livestock products, tobacco and truck crops have resulted in a 9-point increase in the general level of farm products in the month ended Aug. 15.

The increase raised the department's index 32 points above that of one year ago. All groups except cotton and cottonseed, grain, fruit and dairy products averaged above parity Aug. 15. On that date also, the prices of chickens and eggs advanced from 11 points from 145 to 156 per cent.

DYNAMITE JAPS FROM DUGOUTS

Marines Blast Foe Under Fire Of Snipers, Machineguns, Writer Relates.

and talked with some of the surviving heroes.

Enroute to Tulagi from Guadalcanal on a small boat, we were chased and shelled by a Japanese submarine.

This was a new type of warfare, fought to the last man in hundreds of deep caves, each a fortress in itself.

The marine landing was protected by naval gunfire from cruisers and destroyers which softened enemy resistance, but required home-made dynamite bombs thrust into the dugouts to blast out the Jap strongholds.

Many of the dugouts had to be finished off by marines going in with sub machine guns, rifles and bayonets.

All the Japanese planes in the vicinity of Tulagi—15 seaplanes were caught in the water and on ramps—were machine-gunned by navy planes, which set them afire and sank them.

The marines landed unopposed on the Tulagi beach, pushed toward the jungle and ridge of the island, then started their dangerous progress in fanning out over the length of the narrow little island.

They met their first resistance a few yards away, when they found a nest of dugouts, from which they were exposed to heavy sniping.

The marines pushed through the snipers, but the dugouts resisted for hours.

"It was impossible to approach the dugouts except from one direction," said Col. Marritt A. Edson, of Chester, Vermont. "One man had to crawl to the dugout and try to destroy it with dynamite grenades while continuously exposed to deadly fire.

"And no dugout could be considered wiped out until all the Japs inside were dead. The marines had to go clear inside and wipe them out.

"In one dugout we found 17 dead Japs."

A former British cricket field, surrounded on three sides by hills, was found heavily pillboxed.

It was the scene of the fiercest pieces of fighting.

One sergeant attempted to blow out a cave with grenades, but found the Japs would throw them out as fast as he tossed them in.

The doughty American sergeant then attempted to heave dynamite into the cave. It was thrown back at him, the explosion splintering his leg.

That's where he lost his temper. He went inside, shooting his machine gun and killing four Japs who were shooting at him with automatic rifles.

Eight other Japanese were found dead in the dugout, presumably killed by the first fusillade.

Some of the dugouts held from 30 to 35 men, and occupants could be reached behind the narrow, shallow doors only by throwing in explosives.

I inspected some of these dugouts after their capture and saw piles of bodies in the wreckage.

"Their defense apparently was built around small groups in dugouts with no escape," one colonel commented. "It wasn't safe to enter until all inside were dead—and none surrender."

The Japs evidently has been told that surrender was useless. In one case three Japs had one pistol between them. They fought until their ammunition was gone, except for three shells, then one of them shot his companions and himself.

The marines fought savagely, mopping up the dugouts one by one. By mid-afternoon on August 8, our marines had blasted through the cricket field area and reached the southern end of the island.

The marines found similar caves on Gavutu, which is a small island, one-third of a mile wide with a steep hill 148 feet high.

Tanambogo had a similiar fortified hill, and a causewall connected it with Gavutu.

Capt. Harry L. Torgerson, of Long Island, N. Y., was in charge of dynamiting the Gavutu dugouts.

With four men armed with sub-machineguns covering him, he blew up more than 50 dugouts by thrusting in dynamite. He used 20 cases of TNT and finally ran out of matches.

Father James J. Fitzgerald, of Chicago, administered last rites for the dying on the beach and hill, constantly under fire. American doctors consistently distinquished themselves with bravery in ministering to the wounded.

Casualties on both sides were very heavy. At Gavutu Japanese casualties were between 800 and 900. More than 300 of the enemy were killed the first day, by a tally of the bodies the next morning, and many more were buried alive when a dugout was blown up.

The conquest of Tanambogo was equally costly.

There were an estimated 1,500 to 2,00 Japs in Gavutu and Tanambogo, but only 10 of them were captured.

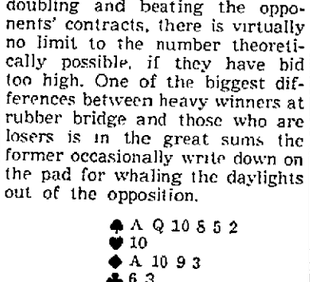
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FAVOR THE DEFENSIVE

If you are going to err in one direction or the other, it is well to remember that favoring the playing of a hand with your own side as declarer limits rather definitely the number of points possible, to the number potentially dealt into the cards. If you have more of a preference for doubling and beating the opponents' contracts, there is virtually no limit to the number theoretically possible, if they have bid too high. One of the biggest differences between heavy winners at rubber bridge and those who are losers is in the great sums the former occasionally write down on the pad for whaling the daylights out of the opposition.



(Dealer: South Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♥
2 NT	3 ♣	3 ♠	4 ♥
Dbl

"Why didn't you bid 4-Spades on your last turn, rather than double?" asked a kibitzer who was watching South, one of the game's most noted "money players."

"Watch and see," answered the star. He did, and he saw.

The spade K was opened, the 7 sent to the Q, the diamond A scored, the heart 10 was led, East ducking because of the J in dummy, and the A won the trick. The diamond K was cashed for the fifth trick by South, who then gave declarer his first trick with the club 9 to the A. East collected his heart K and Q, then led the 5 to the 7. The 9 then took the seventh trick for the defenders.

That made the contract down four tricks, giving North and South a total of 700 points. Analysis of the hand showed that 4-Spades could have been made, with the loss of two tricks in clubs and one in diamonds, but that would not have been anything like as productive of points as the whaling given to East's heart contract.

If your partner has bid a suit in response to your No Trump opening, why is it advisable to have a small card of that suit, in addition to any top honors you hold, such as A-K or A-K-Q, if you decide to carry the hand to a No Trump game instead of a game in his suit?

NAZIS CHECKED AT STALINGRAD

Soviet Counter-Attacks Hurl Foe Back In One Sector Of 125-Mile Line.

of the prisoners were Poles, whom the Germans had impounded into the army. Now, at the first opportunity, they surrendered in groups, with all their arms.

On another sector northwest of Stalingrad and the Volga river line, Soviet soldiers and citizen armies fiercely fought German forces which yesterday drove a deep wedge into their defenses.

On the north Caucasian front near Prokhladnenski, 75 miles northwest of the Grozny oil fields, Soviet troops destroyed three German tanks and two companies of infantry. The communique also said that Soviet ships sank two enemy transports, totaling 12,000 tons, in the Barnets sea.

(The British Broadcasting corporation said that heavy Soviet artillery had been moved into the hills surrounding Rzhev and was pounding the "last remnants of the city" to soften it up for final capture.)

While German advances were slow and more and more costly on the 125-mile Stalingrad front, between the Don and Volga rivers, Stalingrad itself was rapidly being made a city of ruins. The Germans were trying to bomb it to destruction, block by block. Black smoke from burning buildings rolled west and almost obscured the hot sun beating down on the shell and bomb-pocked battlefields.

Every man who could be spared from Stalingrad's remaining war industries had gone to the front with a gun or pick and shovel. Citizens had been organized into battalions for just such an emergency long ago. Civilian armies had been instrumental in saving Leningrad and Moscow.

The Russians put up fierce resistance on the north Caucasus fronts south of Krasnodar, near the Black sea naval base of Novorossisk, and southeast of Prokhladnenski, 75 miles northwest of the Gronzy oil fields.

The communique reported that Soviet warships had sunk an enemy submarine in the Black sea, and that planes had sunk a German transport in the Baltic.

SUNDAY LESSON SUBJECT GIVEN

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 30, 1942. It will have for the Golden Text: "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ" (John 1:17).

Included in the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon are the following correlative passages from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows" (Hebrews 1:9). "Christ expresses God's spiritual, eternal nature. The name is synonymous with Messiah, and alludes to the spirituality which is taught, illustrated, and demonstrated in the life of which Christ Jesus was the embodiment." — (Science and Health, p. 333).

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, AUGUST 29, 1942.

Drive carefully tomorrow—save tires, gasoline and, possibly, lives.

Unheard remark: "The picnic dinner was set for 6 o'clock, so everyone was there and dinner was served promptly at 6."

Word from Ottawa is to the effect that the Canadian capital is also "honeycombed with red tape"—which shows how the Washington influence can spread.

Let There Be More 'Speed Traps'

NOT SO MUCH has been heard, within the past few years, about "speed traps," regarding which some big city motorists were inclined to complain when they were arrested for driving through small communities at far above legal speed.

Judging from the number of motorists who have been arrested on speeding charges in the Mansfield area in recent weeks, it may be just as well to have the word go out over the state that all of the main highways leading into Mansfield are "speed traps"—and that anyone who drives on them at sixty, seventy or eighty miles an hour is very likely to be stopped by a courteous highway patrolman, taken into court and fined.

Fifty miles an hour is the legal speed limit in Ohio, forty miles an hour is the requested maximum—to save rubber—but it is speed well above 50 that engages most attention of highway patrolmen, and there's also the matter of passing on curves and disregarding yellow lines that sometimes attracts their notice.

Mansfield takes no pride in having a fine stretch of new highway on Route 42 between here and Ashland referred to as "the bloody six"—it will sound much better to have it called a "speed trap" until some semblance of sanity is restored to driving thereon.

French Traitors In High Places

FRANCE lost the war because of her traitors. That is now generally known. What is less appreciated is that those traitors were not small fry, but people in high station. Steel-owners kept trade going with Germany despite the war, so that French soldiers were killed with French steel. Important Paris newspapers were on the Nazi payroll.

Other details are now furnished by Henry Torres, a French lawyer, in his newly published "Campaign of Treachery." He tells of big fees paid to French writers for lectures attended almost entirely by Nazi agents, ordered out to fill the halls. Also of big royalties for German editions of books which were never published. French movie stars got big salaries to appear in German films that were never shown. Large manufacturers, says Mr. Torres, resenting the 40-hour week and other labor legislation enacted by the liberal premier Leon Blum said openly, "Better Hitler than Blum!" They got their wish: it would be interesting to know how they like it now.

These were the people who did the harm, these and their agents in politics like Laval. Obscure persons grumbling at the war or reading ill-printed sheets of small circulation might be arrested by the hundreds, without helping the country one iota. The real danger was above, and it was not touched.

There lies, perhaps, a lesson for Americans. As Torres says, "Be on your guard! You never can be sufficiently on your guard!"

Warn Against 'Charity Racketeers'

COMPLAINT that some Ohio recipients of aid for the aged are being victimized by persons representing themselves to be agents of the state and demanding contributions for civilian defense, directs attention to an even broader warning that people should be on guard against what are known as "charity racketeers."

This warning comes from the war hospitality committee of the United Service Organizations and urges the public to be wary of "quacks" who promote all sorts of "benefits for servicemen" by ticket-selling and by other methods designed to line their own pockets.

Information gathered by Better Business Bureaus is that these promoters do not regard 50 per cent of the "take" as too high a commission, while "the benefits to servicemen are hard to find."

Telephone solicitations are particularly warned against, as this is a favorite approach by transient canvassers for questionable schemes. It is estimated that hundreds of thousands of dollars are paid out every year to fake charity promoters who are quick to capitalize on public generosity and it should be required that all organizations and individuals making appeals for contributions establish legitimacy and responsibility.

Much Between Now and 1944

THOMAS E. DEWEY of New York, who was a vigorous and successful district attorney in the metropolis and ran for the Republican presidential nomination two years ago, now accepting the nomination for governor of his state, announces any presidential aspiration for 1944. The implication is that he expects to finish out his term and has no further ambitions "at this time."

Time, however, plays strange tricks. It is inevitable that there will be talk of Dewey and the White House, with side references to Wendell Willkie, from now on. It would be unfortunate and foolish to start talking seriously of the 1944 presidential campaign at this stage of affairs, but political-minded people can't help thinking about it. There will be momentous decisions to make two years hence.

Probing the Japanese Conscience

THE JAPANESE are a curious people. According to Forrest Davis' and Ernest K. Lindley's newly published book, "How War Came," it seems that the Japs have a strange passion for justification. "A Japanese judge will commonly go to almost any length to obtain a confession before sentencing a prisoner, no matter how patent his guilt, wishing the culprit to condemn himself and thus relieve the court of responsibility."

With such tender consciences, after doing some of the things they have done in the Far East, how can they sleep nights?

With the oil shortage and possible transportation tie-up of coal, the crying need, according to an interested observer, is for a fuel-proof furnace.

THE WEAKNESS IN OUR TUG-OF-WAR

Farley Victory Raises Questions

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

NEW YORK Democratic State Chairman James A. Farley's triumph over President Roosevelt, in winning his party's gubernatorial nomination for John J. Bennett, jr., over Franklin D.'s choice, Senator James Mead, at the recent convention for the candidate's selection is being spoken of by politicians in Washington as having been an event of national, not merely local significance. It gives rise to speculation concerning 1944's presidential possibilities.

James Farley

Ever since two years ago there's been a deal of rather sotto voice wondering, "Will F. D. want to be, or will he be conscripted for, a fourth term run?"

If the war's still raging there'll be a strong argument in favor of an affirmative answer. If it's over we'll be in the midst of a period of readjustment that's likely to be represented as an exceedingly poor juncture for a change in chief executives.

Well, this late fight for control in the Empire commonwealth has been quite generally interpreted by political wiseacres as the manifestation of a hot contest for control of delegatorially-rich New York state when the time comes for the next designation of rivals for the ensuing White House tenancy. If this test was a fair sample, it would appear that Jim Farley will do a considerable share of the dictating. Who his pick would be is problematic yet, but apparently it's a safe bet that he isn't a fourth-termer.

November May Tell.

November's approaching election will be a better indicator than anything thus far.

Nominating primaries are pretty efficiently managed, by party managements, and succeeding election results occasionally differ from 'em materially. Illustratively, there's a good bit of predicting that Jim Farley's Bennett won't have a majority, at the polls, in the fall, but that Thomas E. Dewey will beat him, as a Republican. Should this happen, there's no telling what it'll do to Jim's prestige. It's a fair guess, though, that it would make Tom Dewey the next G. O. P. presidential nominee, whether against Roosevelt or some other Democrat.

So far as primaries are concerned, the pre-Pearl Harbor isolationists have been pretty lucky at getting themselves renominated, on both tickets, despite administration efforts to purge 'em. They are all-out pro-war now, of course, but there was an inclination to retire 'em wholesale because they were so slow in getting that way and it hasn't damaged many.

The fact is that it's been a comparatively quiet campaign.

It was expected to be as vicious as fury, but it hasn't turned out so, perhaps because the average individual has been too much preoccupied with blackouts and rations to pay much attention to politics.

The Republicans have been somewhat crippled, too: while being politically anti-administration, they had to be militarily "pro."

About the only thing they've been in a position to accuse the administration of is of having bungled our war activities and doing that hasn't seemed to be satisfactorily patriotic.

Hamilton Fish.

Representative Hamilton Fish of New York is a freak of this situation.

He's a Republican, who has been elected for years to a seat on Capitol Hill from Democratic President Roosevelt's own congressional district.

He's a bug, certainly, but I never heard him called anything but an honest one until the last week or two.

Now he's charged with dodging his income tax and all that sort of stuff.

I've known him in congress for years. Politico - economically crazy? Yes. But a good American.

Keep It Special

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DON'T like slacks. I am about to be called an old fuddy-duddy . . . a relic of the pantalet era . . . and other horrid names. Maybe some of you may write to the editor and ask him what the heck such an old fossil is doing in this space. All right, let 'em. If it's my last blast I'm going to repeat with emphasis:

I DON'T LIKE SLACKS ON THE FEMALE FORM.

And that isn't sour grapes either. I still wouldn't like them if I weighed 130 instead of in the higher mathematics. I admit there are places and times where they are suitable and necessary. In defense factories, for streetcar conductors, as harvest pickers in the orchard and beet fields. Even around the house, when you're cleaning out the old trash for the salvage drive. But when it comes to going on mid-afternoon shopping tours in spiked heels and enameled nails, with a trick permanent, I proclaim and protest that slacks have no place in the program. And make most women look like either morons or monkeys.

The plain truth is, the female figure, unless composed of a slat, is not and cannot be adjusted to slacks and skin-tight sweaters. There is, if you get what I mean, too much and too many of it in proportion to the yard goods involved. Moreover, unless used for sports or for aforesaid industrial emergencies, there's no excuse for them.

IF YOUR AIM IS TO BE PALPITATING, SISTERS, YOU HAVE FAR OVER-REACHED IT. YOU ARE POSITIVELY PULVERIZING. AND I HAVE YET TO SEE THE MAN WHO DOESN'T AGREE WITH ME.

THE HUMAN FORM MAY BE DIVINE, BUT IT CERTAINLY DOES NEED A LITTLE EXTRA CALICO AND A FEW DIM LIGHTS.

No, I'm not an old grouch. Nor am I yearning for the bulky fashions of the Gay Nineties. Nothing could have been more unhealthy or unhygienic or generally hideous. I'm all for anything that will make women modern, that will keep both their bodies and their minds streamlined. And yet I believe that nine-tenths of charm consists of what you DON'T show.

As for the men, I've heard many and murderous orations on this subject. Sure, they like their women to be agile, up-to-date and practical. They're strong for the all-around girl friend who will pitch in and help them carry this war burden.

BUT IF YOU THINK IT'LL WARM YOUR HUBBY'S HEART TO COME HOME AND FIND YOU LOOKING LIKE THE GUY HE GOT STINKO WITH IN MELBOURNE, YOU'VE A LONG GUESS COMING, SISTER.

Yes, girlish glamour is nice. Very, very nice.

BUT FOR PETE'S SAKE, MABLE, KEEP IT SPECIAL.

DON'T MAKE IT A FREE-FOR-ALL.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, August 29, 1922.

It was announced that "Dough Boy" statue being erected in Central park by Jared Mansfield chapter, D. A. R., would be dedicated on Armistice day.

George Shambaugh resigned as motorman on city street car line after 18 years service.

Chapel car operated by Catholic church extension society was in Mansfield for three-day stay.

Miss Lola F. Barry and Glen W. Oswalt were married at Main street Evangelical church.

Mayor H. G. Brunner was on committee to judge floats entered in parade at Galion's fall festival.

Annual picnic of typographical union was held at Casino park, with Carl Hautz as chairman of committee.

Hurst Anderson, William Bloor and Harold Bruce went to Delaware to arrange to enter Ohio Wesleyan university.

TODAY IN HISTORY

This date in 1910 marked the formal surrender by the Korean emperor of his country and crown to Japan. Korea precipitated the Russo-Japanese conflict of five years previous when Japan called the peninsula a "dagger pointed at her heart." At the war's close both sides acknowledged the country's complete independence but as Russia gradually gave way to recognition of Japan's interest, the Japanese continued military occupation until outright annexation.

Timely Editorial

War's Precious Metals.

Remember when people put slugs instead of coins in juke boxes, parking meters and pay telephones? They may wish they had them back. Most of the slugs and kindred tokens are made of zinc and after Sept. 1, says the war production board, there'll be no more zinc for slugs. So people will have to go back to coins.

On silver there is no restriction. A lot of it could be—and some is being—used in war industry. But it's too high-priced. The government, by action of congress, is committed to buy all newly mined silver offered at 71.1 cents an ounce. The price on the open market is 36 cents. So silver goes into the treasury to join 70,000 tons already lying idle there.

In jewelry, too, the old law of economics that bad money pushes out good is being reversed. Brass, copper, steel, tin and zinc once fabricated to bedeck milady must go into munitions and necessary industry.—Minneapolis Star Journal.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Russia and Solomon Islands Hold Top Place In War News of Week

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

WHEN American naval forces went roaring into the Solomon area some three weeks ago to disgorge fierce-fighting marines onto important Japanese-held islands of that group, they had the element of surprise in their favor.

When the Japanese struck back in an attempt to regain those islands during the week it was no surprise at all. The sons of Nippon, it has long been recognized, just can't take a sock in the nose without making some effort to save face for the setback, no matter the risk.

And military experts, scanning early reports of the return engagement, saw the possibility that the enemy might be running a terrific risk in comeback attempt.

One more decisive setback for the Nipponese fleet, they figured, would mean Pacific supremacy for the Allied Nations. First reports of Japanese losses and the navy's statement that results were "encouraging" pointed to a possible major success.

Solomon's Importance.

The strategic importance of the Solomons was pointed up by the hurried Japanese effort to crack back. With U. S. forces controlling that area, the stage was set for further attacks on Japanese-conquered territories, with Tokyo the ultimate goal.

Equally important was the long-range view of the situation, since the threat of U. S.-held bases handicapped the enemy in his war in China and in his plans for invading Siberia.

Before the Japs sent heavy aerial forces winging over Guadalcanal last Monday as the prelude to their intensive aerial-naval counter-attack, they made three previous bids to thwart the American campaign, none of them successful.

First phase was the defensive efforts against transports and landing forces which effected the occupation some three weeks ago, operations in which the enemy lost 36 planes in two days.

Next, the Japanese brought in a force of cruisers and destroyers to attack American troops and supply ships, an effort which went haywire when U. S. warships intercepted them and engaged them in the first strictly naval duel with the Japanese in this war.

In a third futile effort, the Japanese navy landed 700 men, a suicide unit as it turned out. The marines, who by that time had scattered the enemy's island garrisons and chased them into the jungles, turned on the intruders, killed 670, took the other 30 prisoners.

Just where the Japanese armada had assembled for its big, all-out effort to retake the Solomons was a matter of conjecture but most experts figured it had started from the enemy naval base at Truk, 1,000 miles away.

A few days after the battle started, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied bombers had attacked a huge Japanese convoy 150 miles off New Guinea, apparently speeding re-inforcements to the main attacking force.

At Home

Unusual as Usual.

When James A. Farley makes a political prediction, the boys in the back room usually find it expedient to have some of the same. Farley called the turn on Maine and Vermont. He called it again in the hectic mud-slinging days before New York state's Democrats convened in Brooklyn to choose a candidate for governor.

There Farley's man, Attorney General John J. Bennett (Jack Bennett to thousands of American Legionnaires), beat off Roosevelt's man, U. S. Senator James M. Mead, on the first ballot. Thus Farley got even for 1940 when he split with the president on the third term issue.

After Republicans at Saratoga nominated Thomas E. Dewey by acclamation, Farley made another prediction: That Jack Bennett would run so well upstate that Dewey would come down to New York City with a plurality of 250,000, easily wiped out in the Democratic metropolis.

Manpower Pinch.

In World War I nearly half a million American married men were drafted. From Washington, during the week, came indications that even more would be called on in this war.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service chief, explained that men are needed "at a rate which would have been considered super-human a year ago," advised married men without children to prepare for early summons to arms.

With more than four million men already in the services, experts estimate that more than half of the presently available, physically qualified men already are in uniform—and they are being added to at the rate of 300,000 a month.

Lowering draft limits to include 18- and 19-year-olds, consistently urged by the war department, would relieve some of the manpower pinch, but to meet estimates of an ultimate 10-million-man army in 1944, that move will not greatly alter current demands.

Production—Up and Down.

"The big job ahead of us right now is to bring our program into balance and make sure that we use our materials and facilities as wisely as possible."

WPB Chairman Donald Nelson, in his second war production report, pointed to uneven spots in the picture of munitions output, noted that in some cases production had out stripped the forecasts and in others "forecasts were not approached."

A few days later he moved toward closer personal supervision over the flow of war materials to see that "the right materials get to the right places at the right time. . . ."

Nelson's sudden moves to smooth out and speed up the production program didn't come because the U. S. hadn't bettered its June records during July—the trouble was that in many cases output had not been sufficiently bettered.

'Woman's Place—?'

What will happen after the war to those women who are doing men's work in war factories?

A common enough question since Pearl Harbor, it had a not uncommon answer from four aircraft company employers in the Los Angeles area during the week.

The women are going to stay on the job permanently.

Hugh Fenwick, Vultee vice president, pointed to a girl placing fine electric wires in precise positions on a small board, explained to a reporter:

"I couldn't do that with my big hands no matter what they paid me, and neither can most men."

Executives of the three other companies, North American Aviation, Douglas and Lockheed-Vega, agreed that they liked women workers and wanted more of them.

Abroad

Russia Strikes Back.

Since Adolf Hitler's Russian drive started two months ago at Kharkov, his man-crushing armies have rolled some 350 miles due east, about 500 miles southeast.

In both directions, the drives had slowed tremendously in the last few weeks: Natural barriers in the North Caucasus, do-or-die resistance before the Don Bend and in the Don-Volga corridor before Stalingrad had made it much tougher than when the blitz troops rolled as many as 170 miles a week across the Don steppes early in the campaign.

In the north, the Russians apparently had finally lashed out with an offensive but observers doubted that it would immediately relieve the grave southern dangers. From Aug. 11 to midweek, the Soviets announced, they had advanced 25 miles over a 70-mile front.

But with a million men thrown into the two-way assault on Stalingrad, the Germans sent hordes of tanks rolling across the placid 500-yard wide Don river, turned them loose in furious assault against the last few miles of defenses before Stalingrad.

Most experts were agreed that unless Hitler's current drives paid off with complete success, his chances were shot in Russia.

Chinese Puzzle.

Things were going so well in China that Chiang Kai-shek and Allied leaders were worried. The Japanese were losing face and territory so fast in Central and Eastern China that it was obvious they were withdrawing troops, probably for use on another front.

Chiang's durable soldiers were busy chasing Japs off the Chekiang-Kiangsi railroad right of way, recapturing towns the Japanese recently took to prevent their use as air bases.

The Japs may be pulling seasoned veterans out of China to throw into the Solomon islands battle. They may be preparing a force to attack India and South China through Burma. Or planning a drive in Southeast China where they have not yet been successful. Or they may be getting ready to jump onto Russia via Siberia.

Another 'Second Front'?

The worst of the blazing desert heat that saps the strength of fighting men and makes a sustained offensive all but impossible, is almost over in Egypt.

Military observers, coupling that fact with indications that both Allied and Axis forces in the desert were drawing back for a roundhouse punch, figured that things were about to pop in the Near and Middle East.

Meanwhile, both sides in the Egyptian theater continued their race for reinforcements, with U. S. air forces prominent in the news both as reinforcements and as attacking units against Rommel's supply lines.

Quotes

Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, Canada: "We had better stop losing the war before we talk about winning it. Hopes of the Allied nations lie in the mass production of the United States. If that fails, this continent will face the fury of the Axis powers. We will then be isolated and alone."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, welcomes reunion of the two big labor organizations to further the war effort: "We will put forth every effort toward merging the C. I. O. and A. F. of L. We urge them (the C. I. O. unions) to come back to the house of labor—the house they left in 1935."

In Short

Directed: By the War Labor board, a wage increase of 5½ cents an hour, retroactive to Feb. 15, to approximately 250,000 "big steel" company employes.

Killed: The Duke of Kent, youngest brother of the king of England, in a crash of a flying boat in Northern Ireland while en route to Iceland on active war duty.

Convicted: Rev. Kurt E. B. Molzahn, 47-year-old pastor of a German Lutheran church in Philadelphia, on a charge of delivering American military secrets to Axis powers; Herbert K. F. Bahr, former Buffalo, N. Y., athlete, on a charge of conspiracy to commit espionage on the U. S. after his return on an exchange liner.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Rex Ingram, that grand negro actor, can play a million roles if he wants to, but he will always be known and remembered as De Lawd in Marc Connelly's "Green Pastures." In Harlem, where Ingram is highly regarded even by those who have never sat in attendance on De Lawd, he can do no wrong. So it was that last week he returned from a sojourn on the west coast, where he had appeared in support of Ronald Colman in a picture called "The Talk of the Town."

"Ain't it a comedown," one of Ingram's Harlem fans asked, "playing in the movies after 'De Lawd'?"

Ingram grinned: "My role in "Talk of the Town" makes me just about as important. I'm the chief valet of an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court."

I DON'T know why it should but it always startles me to remember that Ray and Bob Eberle are brothers. The ace vocalists for those rival bands (Jimmy Dorsey and Glenn Miller) aren't the only brothers in band business. There's Glenn Miller and his brother Herb; Jimmy and Nappy Lamare; Benny Goodman's brothers, Harry, Irving and Freddy; Phil and Maurice Spitalny; Clyde and Lynn Lucas; Bing and Bob Crosby; Fred and Tom Waring . . . Fletcher and Horace Henderson, the Lombardo boys, Guy, Carmen, Victor, and Liebert . . . There are probably others, but I can't think of them. Oh, sure, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey.

John Gunther can lift his sights on that story of the U. S. Signal Corps he is doing at Twentieth-Century-Fox. A gander at the Marines' opus, "Wake Island" will give him something fancy to shoot at. The Marines had their official "opening" at Quantico, Va., where it should have been held. Gunther, who wrote "Inside Europe," "Inside Asia," and "Inside Latin America," is next going to write "Inside the U.S."

THE fan letter to top all fan letters, according to George Ross, veteran Broadway observer, came to William Saroyan just after that ambitious playwright had taken the worst beating of his professional career. Saroyan's theater (two plays) opened on Broadway to howls of "No, No, Decidedly No" from the critics, and he was naturally glum.

But in the mail, from Boston, came this cheering epistle: "Dear Mr. Saroyan, please send bus fare and two tickets for Saturday evening's performance."

Gladwin Hill, Wide World reporter who was married at the Little Church Around the Corner just before shoving off for London, was nervously introducing his father, mother, and relatives to friends just before the wedding took place. While introductions were in progress J. M. Kendrick, Hill's boss, spied a pretty blond off to one side. "Who are you?" he amiably inquired. "Who me?" she said, "Oh, I'm the bride."

MANSFIELD BUSINESS IN REVIEW

Culp Brothers Urge Mansfield Residents To Make Watches, Jewelry Last Duration

Advise Timepieces Be Put In Good Shape Immediately

That watch you wear on your wrist, or on a fob or chain or just in your pocket is going to have to last you until the war is over.

American watch manufacturers have been ordered to cease production because the metals and skilled workmen needed for watch-making are needed still more for helping to fight our war.

Imports of fine Swiss watches and foreign alloys needed for American watch production have also been hit by the war. So its up to you, Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield to take care of that precious little tangle of wheels that tick away the moments so accurately.

In order to insure the finest workmanship in putting your watch in shape for the duration, bring it to Culp Brothers, Mansfield's newest and most modern jewelry store at Rooms 307 and 308 in the Richland Trust building.

The Culps, Eugene and Earl, do not rely on window-dressing or fancy store fronts to attract customers. Their only stock in trade is the finest craftsmanship in the city for the repairing of watches or the mounting or working of jewels or rare metals.

More and more as the war goes on, and shortages of merchandise become increasingly frequent and acute, most jewelers are finding it necessary to turn away customers without satisfaction. The Culps have, however, a stock of rare metals and jewels which will assure Mansfielders a good selection—if they do not put off their purchases too long.

One of the Culps most recent features is the restyling of old jewelry pieces and the repair of old silverware. The Culps feel that in a period of war psychology, the sentimental attachment of owners for their treasured belongings becomes stronger than ever, and they are more than ordinarily responsive to suggestions that they should be beautified and put in good order.

Many persons who for reasons of war economy may hesitate to buy the new things they crave, will be delighted to see how the Culps' art and craftsmanship can transform what they already have into something fine and new for far less than new pieces would cost them.

As a matter of fact the Culps feel that the war is giving the jewelry business back to the jewelry men. With the same rise which transformed the old drug store into a modern "have-it-all," the old jewelry store with its ethics, was snowed under by a swarm of "cut-prices" and "hole-in-the-wallers," "dime-a-week" credit men, and other pea-and-shell artists who call themselves "jewelers" because there is no law to prevent them.

One of the best places in the city to take your watches or jewelry for repair or modernization is to the Culp Brothers store in the Richland Trust building. Here you will find no fancy store-windows or showrooms but a private display room in which you may select your favorite jewelry gifts in pleasant surroundings. In the pictures above is shown a view of the Culp Brothers showroom in which jewelry and watches are shown to their best advantage and a view of the Culps' workshop in which Earl, shown at left, specializes in diamond and other gem work while Eugene, right, does all watch and clock work.

Other jewelers have been hit by the government ban which prevents jobbers from supplying new materials, but the Culp Brothers stock-in-trade is craftsmanship upon which there is no restriction.

Earl Culp, a veteran of 24 years in the jewelry business, handles all of the jewelry problems while Eugene, a graduate of the famous Bradley Horological Institute is qualified to repair or even reproduce any part of your watch or clock.

The Culp Brothers afford people from the Mansfield area a type of service which is usually found only in the larger cities.

Many jewelers in north central Ohio depend upon the Culps to manufacture and supply for them intricate parts needed for jewelry articles and watches.

It may be that old watch your grandfather or grandmother owned is a proud possession. The Culps can put it in running shape if necessary and give it an antique styled case which will not make it seem out of place in these modern times.

If you're thinking of doing your Christmas shopping early, don't forget the Culps because they possess one of the finest lines of jewelry in the city.

Save Fuel by Having Home Checked for Heat Losses

One way in which home owners can make a definite contribution to the war effort is by making sure that their heating equipment is in proper working order, so that there will be no unnecessary use of coal next winter.

In an effort to reduce the demand for fuel for domestic purposes, both government and private engineers are urging home owners to check home-heating wastes.

And now is the time to make that check, by determining that the heating unit is in good working order. Much heating waste can also be attributed to homes that are not properly insulated. If this is the case in your home it is your duty, not only to your government but to yourself, to see that the condition is remedied before next fall.

The cost of insulating a home is quickly paid for by the cut in fuel bills, as many home owners have discovered.

In urging the use of proper insulation as an effective conservation measure, government engineers point out that if less fuel is used for civilian needs, augmented requirements for war can be met without unduly increasing the number of men needed at the coal mines or oil wells.

FHA authorities recommend also that heating plants be carefully checked by well-equipped heating service men to assure maximum efficiency of the heating system. This check should include investigation of fuel combustion, and if necessary, the adoption of methods for improving its efficiency. Pipes, registers, radiators, etc., should be carefully examined for bad connections. Grates should be checked, if the furnace is coal-fired, to see that there is no loss in unburned coal.

It is pointed out that much heat waste can be attributed to badly fitting doors and windows which permit the warm air to escape, and the cold wintry blasts to seep in. These factors all help to run the heating bill up.

The British prime minister, who also is first lord of the treasury, receives a salary of 10,000 pounds a year.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

There was no mistaking the grim and feral determination in Noel's face and manner. I had been able to sway him when my father sent me to him, but this time he was adamant and I was thankful that my father himself now had made it unnecessary for me to combat Noel's decision.

"But that's what I was just going to tell you," I said. "Mary never again will have to go out alone with Redfield."

He stared at me uncomprehendingly, in about the mental state of a man who has lashed out to strike a stone wall and found himself flailing a feather bed.

"What do you mean?" he stammered.

Instead of answering him directly I turned to Mary, at whom he had not looked since his first furious glare at her, and voiced a command intended to enable her to get hold of herself, for I knew she was almost at the breaking point.

Mary Sent Away.

"Mary, dear," I said, "will you please go into my bedroom and stay there until I call you? Lie down and rest, even if you cannot sleep."

Noel started, said nothing but his startled face said eloquently that he preferred his wife within reach of his anger.

Mary, however, with a sigh of relief, scurried out of the room, flashing me a grateful glance as she went out. Then I turned back to Noel.

"I mean exactly what I said," I told him. "Did you hear what my father said to your wife when he read that paper which he took from Redfield's shoe?"

Noel Doesn't Understand.

He stared at me for an instant, uncomprehendingly, then drew his hand across his eyes as if brushing away cobwebs.

"I heard him say 'Good work'," he said "but it didn't mean a thing to me. I haven't any idea what's going on, except that your father thinks Mary can get valuable information out of that swine."

"Then I would better tell you now, just what Mary has done," I told him. "She has rendered her country a most signal service."

Noel, an ugly sneer in his voice, interrupted me.

"If she were serving some other country your father probably would dub her another Mata Hari" he said. "I'm afraid I can't wax enthusiastic over my wife's role as a glamorous extractor of secrets."

Brought to His Senses.

"If you were a small boy I should slap you roundly for that speech," I said angrily, and I was glad to see a remorseful, apologetic look in his eyes.

"I'm sorry," he said humbly. "I shouldn't have said that. But you don't know; you can't imagine—"

"Yes I can," I interrupted sturdily. "I can and do understand, and I sympathize with what you are feeling. But I cannot permit you to be unjust to your wife, who has worked at her distasteful task without faltering or complaining, and who has just brought it to a triumphant conclusion.

"Now I want you to listen quietly while I tell you about it, and to reserve judgment until I have finished."

"I see," says Pete Metz. "where Red Hamman and his Mansfield Travelers have challenged Westinghouse to a hardball game or a softball game or both, and I do not see where Westinghouse has taken up any part of the challenge.

"So," continues Mr. Metz, "I propose to get together something of an all-star aggregation, and I hereby challenge Mr. Hamman and his Travelers to a double-header. hardball and softball, to be played on a Sunday afternoon at the Fairground.

"And I would like to hear from Mr. Hamman immediately if not sooner so that I can get my heroes together for some practice in these two forms of diamond activity."

Coach A. L. Buckner is issuing no "call" for first practice by his Ashland high school gridders. He is "instructing" 33 of them to be on hand for the initial drill on Sept. 1.

That's one advantage of spring football. He knows right now just about what his lineup will be this fall, and who the replacements will be, and he doesn't have to take a cha. ce on issuing a call and then learning what he's got.

The squad has already been weeded out, and any added strength that may come along will be just so much to the good.

And among the 33 will be eight lettermen: Backs Leo Strang, Bob Dove and Pug Puglisi, and Lineman Junior Martin, regulars, and Beymer, Yeater, James and Finlay, first-line reserves of last year. Ashland believes it has a powerhouse ready to spring on the N. C. O. league.

With one exception, the coaching staff of Sandusky's Blue Streaks, perennial rivals of Mansfield's Tygers, will be back this fall, according to Coach Wallace Glenwright.

Recent death of John Moore, assistant coach for the past ten years, causes the only vacancy. John Weis will be backfield coach for his fifth year, Howard Ziemke starts his second year as line coach, and Chester Cullen again is in charge of the training program.

And Glen Rehfuss, Sandusky fire department lieutenant, again is donating his services.

Jack Taylor, former coach of the Toledo Woodward team which comes here this fall, is now somewhere in the Pacific, fighting Japs.

Taylor was inducted into the army just a little over a month ago, July 21, was sent to Camp Stoneman, Calif., and shortly afterward left for the scene of battle.

Bill Salem collected four hits, including a two-run homer, the other evening as Camp Perry soldiers defeated a Sandusky all-star team 4-0. The ex-Brave has really been powdering the pellet lately.

Yankees Don't Need Crutches

Appear Able to Stagger In With Championship.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

DISHEARTENING as it may be to the Boston Red Sox, the citizens of Brooklyn and the manufacturers of medical supplies, it begins to look as if the New York Yankees will be able to finish the American league pennant race without the aid of an ambulance.

* * *

With their injury list crowded much of the time, the Yanks have done little better than break even since the start of the month, winning 15 games and losing 11 for an average of .577.

But the cripples have started shedding their bandages and turning up at their regular posts, a situation that spells trouble for other clubs in the league and particularly the Red Sox, who have won 16 of their last 18 games in a desperate drive to overhaul the Yanks.

Two fugitives from a hospital took their places in the lineup yesterday as the Yankees applied their 17th whitewash job of the year, a 3-0 shutout over the crumbling Cleveland Indians.

Spud Chandler made his first start on the mound since Aug. 19, when he wrenched his back, and demonstrated that he has recovered completely, allowing only seven hits in registering his 14th triumph. Buddy Hassett also returned to his first base post, enabling utility infielder Gerry Priddy to shift to the opposite corner and give Red Rolfe a much needed rest.

The victory kept the Yankees eight games in front of the Red Sox, who blanked the Chicago White Sox, 4-0, on the four-hit hurling of Joe Dobson

Meanwhile, the St. Louis Browns strengthened their hold on third place by nipping the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-4 in ten innings, and the Detroit Tigers moved to within a game and a half of fourth-place Cleveland by beating Washington 10-7 in 14 innings.

In the National league, the Brooklyn Dodgers walloped the Chicago Cubs, 7-1, but watched their lead shrink to five games as the stubborn St. Louis Cardinals took both ends of a double bill from the Philadelphia Phils 7-4 and 7-5.

Claude Passeau went after his 18th pitching victory for the Cubs but wound up with his tenth defeat.

The New York Giants were kept idle by weather at Pittsburgh but their hold on third place was strengthened when the Boston Braves knocked over Bucky Walters and the Cincinnati Reds, 4-2, in a night game.

Segura Bids For Net Title

But Frankie Parker Shows Comeback Sign.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Francisco Segura of Ecuador, self-styled "man to beat," makes a delayed start in the 61st National Amateur Tennis championships at Forest Hills today, his Andean optimism jolted by the comeback of little Frankie Parker.

Parker smashed Jack Celler of New York, 6-0, 6-0, 6-0, and his stroking exhibition proved that leaving the tennis circuit to work as a Hollywood technician hadn't hurt his game.

The only first round match not completed was that between Segura, top seeded in the foreign draw, and Ensign Ronald Edwards, Ithaca, N. Y.

Advancing into the second round with Parker yesterday were fourth-seeded Billy Talbert, Cincinnati; sixth-seeded Seymour Greenberg, Chicago, the national clay court champion, and seventh-rated Harris Everett, Jacksonville, Fla. Talbert stopped Bill Tully, New York, 6-1, 6-0, 6-2; Greenberg progressed by default and Everett defeated Ed Gilbert, New York, 6-2, 6-0, 6-1.

All the women's favorites advanced on schedule, including third-seeded Margaret Osborne, Los Angeles.

Jinx Falkenburg, Hollywood screen star, was among the first round casualties. She was eliminated by Mrs. Madge Vosters, Landsdowne, Pa., 6-1, 6-2.

DETROIT CALLS IN FIVE FARM HANDS

DETROIT — (INS) — The Detroit Tigers today announced the recall of five players—subject to completion of the seasons in the leagues in which they are now playing.

Recalled from Beaumont were Outfielders Dick Wakefield and Walter Evers and Pitcher Charles Fuchs. From Buffalo will come Infielder L. D. Maeyer and from Winston-Salem, Catcher Al Unser.

COACH NAMED

WELLSVILLE — (U.P.) — Walter Ingalls of Glen Falls, N. Y., today became assistant to John Montgomery, Wellsville high school's new football coach. Ingalls is a former Carnegie Tech athlete and coached at Mars, Pa., high school last year.

PROVIDENTS MEET COLUMBUS CLUB

Provident Loan girls tomorrow at 3 p. m. at North Lake park will meet the Columbus Wilks Meats, the team that knocked them out of this year's state tournament 1-0 in 13 innings in the semi-finals. Ethlyn "Gussie" Feyh, pitching star of the tournament, who allowed only 8 hits in 34 innings, hurled one no-hit game, and held the Providents to three hits, will be on the mound for the visitors.

Dawson Drops Travelers

Hurls Three-Hitter as Locomotives Win 3-1.

Dean Dawson of Shiloh, former hurler for the Fremont Green Sox, held the Mansfield Travelers to three hits last evening in a weather-abreviated 6-inning game, and Plymouth Locomotives walked off with a 3-1 victory.

Each team scored a run in the second inning. Steve Popovic singled for Plymouth, then stole second and third and raced home on a passed ball.

Kenny Lockhart singled for the Travelers, reached second on an error, went to third on an infield out, and tallied the tying run on a passed ball.

Plymouth pushed over the deciding markers in the third. F. Buzard singled and scored on Delmar Nesbitt's single. Nesbitt went to third on a passed ball, and tallied on Dawson's single.

Young Jack Elliott, Ontario high school boy, held the Locomotives to four hits.

Tomorrow the Travelers play the Lucas Merchants at the Fairground at 2:30, with Pat Patterson hurling for the Mansfielders.

The Locomotives will go to Willard where Dawson is again scheduled to pitch against the V.F.W. Cleveland and Toledo scouts are expected to be in the stands for this game.

However the championship match is not scheduled until next week as Slabaugh expects to be out of the city most of next week. Enos and Gadfield reached the finals with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Pluck-Rakestraw.

* * *

Semi-final pairings for boys' singles were completed yesterday as John Schwarz defeated Denny Landon 6-1, 6-0. Schwarz meets John Butler and Norman Wilcox meets Charles Alderson.

Alsab Tries for 3rd Stake Victory

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Alsab goes after his third major stake victory today when he faces a field of six challengers in the $79,000 American Derby.

Alsab, a claimant of the three year old turf championship, won the Preakness and the Withers Stakes and finished second in the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont Stakes.

Originally it was expected that the bay son of Good Goods-Wild Chant would oppose Shut Out, Greentree stables' Kentucky Derby and Arlington classic winner in the American Derby for a "show down" between the two leading contenders. However, after an unimpressive early week workout Shut Out was scratched.

With Shut Out absent, Alsab will go to the post the odds-on-favorite. He probably will be about 3 to 5 in the mutuels.

Second choice in the wagering likely will be the Valdina Farm's entry of Valdina Orphan and Rounders.

LEAGUE LEADERS EDGE TO VICTORY

(By Associated Press)

The three top-runners in the sizzling race for the American association pennant managed to squeeze through to victories last night.

Columbus kept its narrow lead with a .546 percentage rating by edging out Louisville 3 to 2, while Kansas City overpowered St. Paul, 7 to 4, and Milwaukee shaded Minneapolis 8 to 7. The Brewers won-lost average stands at .543 and the Blues at .538. The Indianapolis at Toledo game was postponed.

Gallarneau Gains In Game With Stars

Hugh Gallarneau (8), right halfback of the Chicago Bears, makes a gain, above, in the first quarter of the Chicagoans' clash with the college All-Stars at Soldier Field, Chicago, before more than 100,000 fans. Coming up from behind is End George Wilson (30) in an attempt to block Henry Stanton (5) of the All-Stars who is trying to stop Gallarneau.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(By Wide World)

NEW YORK — Max Hill, former AP foreign correspondent who just got home from Tokyo, reports that one of his most exciting adventures in Japan came because he had a yen to bet on a horse race . . . It seems Japanese race fans are allowed to buy only one ten-yen ticket (worth about $5) on the horse they pick . . . When Max went back for another ticket he was apprehended and tossed into fokey, and since Hill couldn't talk Japanese and the cop couldn't understand English, Max had quite a time getting out . . . Just goes to show the difference: Here guys who bet $10 on a race usually want the jockey or the owner jugged . . . Old Honus Wagner is back in circulation after 11 weeks in the hospital because of an eye infection . . . When Notre Dame opens the grid season against Wisconsin, Sept. 26, the Badgers will use the "Notre Dame" system while the Irish will rely on the "T."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

J. P. Wynne, Lock Haven, (Pa.) Express: "Can't figure out whether the twi-night ball clubs should be called cold supper clubs or cold shoulder clubs, seeing that the Hollywood inaugural attendance was only a little over 500."

* * *

Hank Wolfe of the Richmond News Leader relays this incident from a sandlot game for the benefit of all guys who claim you can't steal first base . . . On a hit and run play, the batter failed to swing at the ball. The runner on first broke with the pitch and was almost down to second when he suddenly pulled up and sprinted madly back to first . . . He made it safely, but it wasn't until the inning ended that his teammates learned why he had reversed himself on an apparently successful steal . . . Seems the catcher made a looping toss down to the second baseman and the runner, just catching a glimpse of the ball, figured it was a pop fly.

Indians Bid Yanks Goodbye

Al Smith Gets Job of Facing Bombers Today.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Indians play their last Yankee stadium game of the season today, entrusting their hopes to Al Smith, only Indian hurler to beat the Yankees here this year.

And then come three games at Washington and one at Philadelphia, affording Cleveland a welcome opportunity of meeting opposition from the bottom of the league standings.

Yesterday's licking, at the hands of the Yankees and Spud Chandler, 3 to 0, was Cleveland's fourth defeat in five games of the final eastern tour.

The defeat left Cleveland a margin of only one and one-half games over the fifth-place Tigers, and the Indians now trail the St. Louis Browns by two and one-half.

Auditors Defeated In Tournament

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Two Cleveland entries were still in the running today after stiff first round tests in the central regional softball tournament which opened at Lakewood last night.

Erin Brew girls of Cleveland took a 1-0 decision from the Louisville, Ky., Camera Corners in 12 innings.

The Detroit-Bunts Recreation men's team—another Cleveland entry—emerged a 1-0 victor over the Cincinnati Coca Colas, thanks to a one-hit pitching job by Norbert Warken. The Cincinnati pitcher, Jim Murphy, only gave up two hits.

Ft. Wayne (Ind.) Zollner Machines nosed out the Columbus (O.) Ferguson Auditors, 2-1.

The tourney, conducted on a two-defeats-and-out basis, was resumed today.

Farmer Wins Clay Classic

Takes Grand American In Shoot-Off Thriller.

By FRITZ HOWELL

VANDALIA —(AP)— An Illinois farmer, 32-year-old James F. Holderman of Morris, may be the first man in history to hold the Grand American Handicap Trapshooting championship more than one year.

He won it yesterday in a thrilling shootoff with Art Finney, Mankato, Minn., dry cleaner, and unless the ban on the manufacture of shot gun shells is lifted, the "Roaring Grand" probably will not be held next year and Holderman will retain the title for the duration.

Holderman and Finney hooked up in a 25-target shootoff after outshooting a field of almost 1,000 with scores of 193 of 200—Holderman from 20 yards and Finney from 23. In the extra event Holderman broke 25 straight, while Finney muffed the fifth and tenth clays.

Ed Goetz, 17-year-old Mansfield, O., boy who was tied for first at the halfway mark with 98 out of 100 targets, finished just eight shots off the winning score with 185 out of 200. His first 100 shots were taken from 18 yards, and the next hundred from 20. It was his first trip to the Grand American.

Victory meant glory, a flock of silverware and more than $1,500 in cash to the winner, who operates a 600-acre farm 20 miles from Joliet. He has been shooting only three years

Winner of the women's Roaring Grand was 19-year-old Carolyn Elliott of Nashville, Tenn., a junior majoring in chemistry at Vanderbilt university. The Tennessee blonde broke 24 of 25 in a shootoff to defeat Mrs. Donald McClain of Atlanta, Ga., after they had tied at 183 of 200.

Julius Petty of England, Ark., won the all-around championship for the week's firing, breaking 910 singles, doubles and handicap targets out of 950, four ahead of Holderman and Jim Stinson of Bradford, Pa.

* * *

Homer Clark of Alton, Ill., annexed the professional crown in the big handicap.

More than 1,000,000 shells were fired during the week's barrage.

Campbell Takes Junior Golf Title

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — Robert Campbell, 18, of Granville wore the state junior golf crown today.

Campbell, runner up to Frank Stranahan of Toledo last year, carded a pair of one-over-par 73's for 146 in the 36-hole medal play event at Springfield Country club yesterday to finish five strokes ahead of Walter Hubbard of Shaker Heights, who had 151.

Mark Moots of Canton and William Barth of Cincinnati tied for third with 153, but Barth won in a playoff.

Stranahan was not eligible to defend his title, having recently passed the 19-year age limit.

Bears Romp Over Stars

Final Touchdown Goes Over Obscured by Fog.

By DAVE HOFF

CHICAGO —(AP)— Coach Bob Zuppke's dream of a glamorous ending to his long career in football evaporated like the mists that all but obscured last night's ninth annual All-Star game in Soldier field.

His one time pupil, George Halas, and the massive Chicago Bears machine showed the old Illinois master no mercy before a record crowd of 101,100, walloping the Stars 21 to 0. The Bears won last year's game, 37 to 13.

The National Football league champions of 1940 and 1941, despite the departure of 10 star players for the armed forces, still have their Sid Luckman and their Hugh Gallarneau and their other gridiron demons. The fact they scored only three touchdowns last night was a tribute to the excellent conditioning of the All-Stars.

The Bears have now participated in four of the nine All-Star contests without suffering a defeat. They were held to a scoreless tie in the 1934 series inaugural.

Those who sat in the upper regions of Soldier field did not see a single play of the 75 yard drive that netted the Bears their third touchdown in the third period. Fog obscured the playing field from view, but the man with the microphone dutifully reported Luckman completed a 58 yard pass play to Hampton Pool and that Gallarneau galloped over from the eight yard line to score.

The first period Bear touchdown was visible, as Gallarneau went over from the four yard line to climax a 60 yard Bear power drive. The second period touchdown was made on a 23 yard pass from young Bussey to Pool, and all that was observed by all hands, too. Joe Stydahar kicked all three conversion points.

Minnesota's Bruce Smith, probably the All-Stars most consistent performer, directed two fierce thrusts in the second period that failed for want of a punch runner. Notre Dame's Steve Juzwik drew the night's biggest cheers for a 91 yard sprint in the first period, six yards shy of a touchdown.

The game netted about $160,000 for army and navy relief, the biggest such fund raised in any single day sports event since Pearl Harbor.

DeMilo Clinches Loop Golf Crown

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

The "singing of a cricket" is not really singing at all, but more of a "fiddle music." On the wing of a cricket is a rough, narrow, ribbon-like pad, known as the file. It is rubbed against a rough part on the other wing, and from that comes the sound. It is the male that makes all the music.

"Talking owls" inhabit some of our Western States. The western barred owls have a certain amount of curiosity and will frequently crudely imitate sounds made by a human's voice.

An ostrich egg will make as large an omelet as three dozen hen's eggs. The egg of the ostrich has an average length of eight inches, a six inch diameter and will weight about three pounds.

With September and squirrel season just ahead, it's not a bit too early to get ready for coming days of sport afield. Yuncker's are ready now with new, fresh stocks of famous Western shells, hunter's clothing and guns. Deserving special mention is the unusual selection of used shotguns (including 12 gauge) in a wide range of models and makes, and all in the best of condition. Wise hunters, with an eye to the future, will not wait too long this year to supply their hunting needs.

The neck of a bull moose is possessed of strength beyond belief. He can handle a rack of antlers weighing nearly 100 pounds, as easily and lightly as you can handle your 6-ounce fly rod.

Although the pectoral and ventral fins are not used in propelling a fish through the water, they are so important as balancers that if they were removed the fish could only float on its back—helpless.

MILD FORWARD TENDENCY SEEN IN STOCK MART

Increase In Metal Scrap In June Reported; Tools Also Produced.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Mild forward tendencies continued for selected stocks in today's market.

Up small fractions were Bethlehem, American Telephone, North American, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Texas Co., Standard Oil (NJ), Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and General motors.

Followers of metal company securities found a grain of cheer in the bureau of mines survey estimating iron and steel scrap stocks in the hands of domestic consumers, supplies and producers increased 275,000 gross tons during June to a total of 4,859,000 tons.

A constructive indicator was seen in the war production board summary disclosing a substantial climb in machine tool production in July. The board reported that 28,300 new units with a value of $113,600,000 were shipped during the month against 26,600 in June valued at $111,100,000.

URGES CHANGE

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Here to lead an estimated 6,000 delegates in the Veterans of Foreign Wars' 43rd national encampment opening tomorrow, Max Singer of Boston urged speedy mobilization of America's 18-and-19-year-old youths.

"If we give these boys of 18 and 19 at least two years training, we can be more certain a greater number of them will come back home to us when the war is over not only as survivors but as men who are able-bodied and physically fit."

earth on the coffin containing the body of his brother.

The heavily veiled ladies of the royal family wept openly.

Queen Elizabeth stayed close by the side of the Duches of Kent, comforting her. At one time the widow was unable to get to her feet as she prayed by the side of the coffin.

Crowds thronged the streets of Windsor to watch the mourners walk from the station to the chapel. They came from far and wide, many of them spending the last few drops of their gasoline allotment to do so.

Military representation was confined to the duke's personal regiments. His personal servants were seated near the coffin.

The duke's three children were not present.

VISIT MADISON

Trucks to Tour Township Seeking Scrap Metal.

Trucks will visit homes in Madison township, beginning Monday, in the drive for scrap materials, Carl L. Stough, county salvage chairman, said today.

The salvage drive is still underway in Mansfield and calls are being received at county civilian defense headquarters at the courthouse from city residents who have scrap metal, rubber, rags, or burlap to sell or donate for use in the nation's war program. The headquarters telephone number is 3763-6.

Stough estimated that 12 tons of scrap has been collected and dumped into the bin at Central park. Collections to date in rural areas outside Mansfield total 151 tons, he said.

Receipts from all scrap that is donated go into a fund to finance going-away parties for selectees and for the purchase of Christmas gifts for Richland countains in the armed services.

U. S. SUES AP TO FORCE SALE OF WIRE SERVICE

Lists Association as First Among News-Gathering Agencies of Nation.

strains and monopolizes interstate commerce in news.

Additionally, it was asserted that the acquisition by the AP in 1941 of the stock of Wide World Photos, Inc., a news-picture service formerly owned by the New York Times, was an illegal acquisition of stock of a competing corporation.

The petition asked that the Associated Press be permanently enjoined against further enforcement of the by-law provisions referred to and also required to divest itself of the Wide World stock.

Named as defendants were the Association, a non-profit cooperative incorporated in New York; the 18 members of the board of directors; the publishers of the newspapers with which the directors are affiliated, and the nearly 1,300 other members in the United States as a group. The AP serves more than 2,000 newspapers throughout the world. Only members in continental United States were named.

The government's petition for an injunction against certain by-laws—amended by the members themselves at their annual meeting last April—contended, among other things:

That news agency service is "essential to survival of any newspaper."

That there are three news agencies and "of the news services supplied by those three, that of the Associated Press ranks in the forefront in public reputation and esteem."

That "a newspaper which is barred from AP news operates under a competitive disadvantage with AP members."

The two other news services referred to are the United Press and the International News Service.

"In the mind of the general public," the government said, "the name 'Associated Press' has long been regarded as synonymous with the highest standards of accurate, nonpartisan and comprehensive news-reporting."

Amplifying its contention that the AP stands in the van of news services, the government said:

"One reason for this is that the Associated Press exceeds its competitors in expenditures for collection and transmitting news, in the length of news reports it furnishes, in physical facilities, in size of staff, in number and geographical distribution of news bureaus, in number and geographical distribution of newspapers supplying it with news of their localities and in the unique requirement hereinafter set forth that these newspapers must serve the Associated Press exclusively.

"A second reason is that the character of the organization of the Associated Press—a membership corporation composed of persons representing every shade of economic, political, and religious opinion and every section of the country—is an invaluable guarantee that the promise and claim made by each news-agency—that it presents the news without any political or sectional bias—will in fact be fulfilled."

Contending that freedom of the press would be served by making AP service available to all newspapers willing and able to share the cost of such service, the government said:

"Restraints imposed by denial of AP membership and services are particularly burdensome in that the newspaper must rely on the services of the UP (United Press) alone or as supplemented by INS (International News Service). Furthermore, it is forced to accept whatever terms are demanded by UP (United Press), the one other news-agency equipped to furnish a self-sufficient news service."

Much of the government's argument revolved about by-law provisions governing membership admissions in cases where a member already occupies the field in which an applicant publishes or proposes to publish. By "field" is meant the time of publication; that is, morning or afternoon.

Until this year, an applicant required the affirmative vote of 80 per cent of the membership to gain admission if a member in the same city and field refused to waive his right of protest.

Early this year the justice department notified the Associated Press board of directors that it regarded the exclusion of applicants, based upon no standard other than the competitive effect upon individual members, to be in violation of the anti-trust laws.

In view of that, the complaint stated, the AP membership "materially amended" the by-laws at its annual meeting in April, 1942. The government contended, however, that the amended rules only eliminated the "right of protest" same result by means even more objectionable."

AP Directors Issue Statement On Suit

NEW YORK —(AP)— The following statement of the board of directors of the Associated Press was issued by President Robert McLean today in connection with the government's anti-trust complaint:

"The Associated Press has invaded the lawful rights of no one in the great and unsurpassed service that it has rendered to the reading public for the past forty-two years. What is charged against it is no more at bottom, than this: That it seeks to protect its members who have invested their skill, their work and their money in its growth.

"The Associated Press will resist the present proceedings as without merit in law or fact."

CHAPTER XI

"Hello, my dears," Paul said. "I—"

Seeing Amy, he stood in the doorway and started. After awhile he smiled and said, "Amy—Daphne! What is this, a party? Do I smell spice cakes and coffee?"

"For heaven sake, shut the door, Paul!" Mama Eckert scolded. "The rain's coming in on the carpet."

She went to him and felt his wet hair. "Why, boy, you're soaked! Go hang your coat in the kitchen by the register. When will you learn not to go out without your rubbers!"

When he came back from the kitchen, Daphne ran to him chanting, "I've got my mother's doll, Uncle Paul. I've got my mother's doll."

"Good lord," Paul said with a sort of strained gaiety, examining the battered baby, "I used to see that thing around when I was 6 years old. Hasn't it grown up yet?"

"It's not a 'thing'," Daphne said indignantly.

Paul played with Daphne as though he were not aware of Amy, while Mama Eckert went into the kitchen again for more cakes and coffee. Amy went over and sat by Papa Eckert in the bay window, examining his records from "Lohengrin" as though she did not know Paul had come in.

But she looked up quickly when he said, "Amy."

"Look here, Amy." His eyes pled with her though his tone was gay and careless. "You've seen a lot of those records. But you haven't seen my first pictures. Think of it. Boyhood sketches by a future great landscape painter. Special preview. Come on. I want to show 'em to you."

"Yes, go on with Paul," Mama Eckert urged, ignoring Amy's indignant gaze. "I want Papa to play his 'Hansel and Gretel' records for Daphne."

Amy didn't look at Paul as they climbed the narrow, enclosed stairway to the second floor, but she could feel his nearness as though he were touching her. It was the same way in the little room at the top of the stairs. A boy's room it was, with a string of birds' nests attached to the stiff lace curtains in the dormer window, high school pennants above the desk and dance programs tucked around the mirror.

But in the widest wall space, where the light would strike them, hung several oil paintings, vivid, amateurish, strong. And a water color of a boy about 12 years old. The unruly hair was too black and one eye was a little off, but the expression of the mouth with the dimples at the corners which gave the impression of a half smile, was good.

"Self portrait," Amy said with a little quaver in her voice.

Paul faced her gravely. "You didn't give me a fair chance. You passed judgment on me—"

"I didn't pass judgment. You told me the facts," she said stiffly. "And anyway it isn't my affair."

"It is your affair. I love you."

"You can't be in love with two women at the same time."

"I'm not in love with two women. You're the only woman I've ever loved. You know that, Amy . . . You do know it, don't you?" he demanded softly.

She supposed she did. She was having a hard time remembering all the things she had been thinking about him during the past three days.

But she managed to say, "You let Marcia pay for your education. You let her support you."

"I did not."

"But you told me—"

"I did not. I said she paid for it. But I didn't say I let her."

"I—I don't understand," she faltered.

"Marcia's father had created, in his will, a fund to furnish scholarships for students. That was before I met Marcia. I met her at an art ball."

"And she looked lovely and you smiled and were sweet to her," Amy put in bitterly.

"I don't know what you mean," he said, looking as innocent as the boy in the self portrait.

"I don't suppose you do," she admitted. "You couldn't help it."

"If you mean I couldn't help her giving me the money, you're right. I hardly knew Marcia when I got a notification from the committee in charge of the Fairbairne fund for scholarships that I had been selected as the art student to receive three years' study in Europe."

"Oh," Amy cried. "Then it wasn't Marcia herself." She sat down suddenly on the narrow little iron bed. She'd carried such a heavy load that she felt weak when it was removed all of a sudden.

He came and stood in front of her speaking angrily, almost as if he were scolding her. "It was Marcia herself! Her father hadn't left any fund for art students. And she was 'interested' in me. Marcia's always getting 'interested' in people—not always men, sometimes women, sometimes children—and doing things for them. It's her hobby. Only this time she exceeded herself! She took the money for my education from her private fortune. And she wheedled her trustees into letting me think it came from her father's scholarship fund."

"But that was taking unfair advantage!"

"Of course it was," he said grimly. "And I was such a fool. I didn't know until I'd lived in Paris three years, working so hard—I was so proud that the committee had chosen me. I wanted to make good—to prove to them I was worth it. And probably they were despising me all that time! As I told you before, she paid for everything I had. I didn't have a cent of my own—my clothes even—my cigarets! Also that trip to Cuba when I had to leave Paris because of war conditions. And I didn't find it out until I met one of her father's associates on the boat coming home. He thought I knew. I suppose other people thought so too! I suppose everyone but me knew!"

For a moment she couldn't share his bitterness. For Paul was restored to her. Paul, dear and appealing and sincere—just as she'd thought he was when she first met him, just as she should have known all along. She'd been mean and small and silly. And she'd hurt him. She rose. In another moment she'd have been in his arms. Then she remembered something, something bigger and more important than anything he had said yet.

"But you're engaged to Marcia. You—you must have asked her to marry you."

There was silence in the little room while the rain struck its tiny hammers against the window.

Then he said rebelliously, "I did. But I love you."

"But you must have loved Marcia if you asked her to marry you." She felt like a cross-questioning little school teacher, but she had to go on. She had to get it settled. "At least you must have thought you loved her."

"I didn't know what love was. I was thrown with Marcia a lot in the two months when I was getting ready to go to Europe. She was an old friend of Guy's and he and Frani had her at the house a lot. She was so interested in my plans—and my work. It was the first time I'd had another person all taken up with what I was trying to do."

"The woman tempted me," she mocked.

"Amy!" His black eyebrows drew together stormily. "Why can't you understand? Or try to? Plenty of men have been engaged to the wrong woman. Plenty of girls have been engaged to the wrong man for that matter. We all make mistakes. Look at Guy. You'd say he was an infallible person if there ever was one. He thought he loved Frani. He was so sure of it that he married her. And now he doesn't love her."

In the intensity of the moment his revelations about Guy and Frani made no impression upon Amy.

"I suppose you're right," she said in a voice that was desolate in spite of her. "But how long—I mean was it before you went to Europe—all this time? But I haven't any right to ask that."

"I'd rather you did. I was sick in Paris—the second year I was there. I had the flu. Queer, but I was so sick I thought I'd never get well. I was completely knocked out, and I was all alone. Marcia was in Europe. And she came . . . now I suppose you'll say again, 'the woman tempted me.' She didn't. It was just—just—"

"I know. I didn't mean to pry. Marcia's a lovely person."

"She's a swell person . . . Gosh this is a mess! I don't see how we're going to get out of it."

"We can't," she said swiftly.

"We've got to," he declared. "You certainly don't want me to go on with Marcia now?"

"I'd hate it if you did. And if you married her I'd . . . I'd . . . I don't know what I'd do! But you can't just go to Marcia and tell her. You can't possibly."

He looked surprised. Then he bent his head and stood staring down at the red and green ingrain carpet.

"No, I can't."

"Uncle Paul! Tudor!" The voice was Daphne's and it was followed by a thumping and bumping on the stairs. "I'm bringing my doll. Help me get my doll and cradle upstairs."

Mechanically Amy answered. "Wait a moment, Daphne. I'm coming."

Paul laid a detaining hand on her arm. "Kiss me."

He drew her close and she lifted her lace to his.

"It'll work out all right, sweetheart." He was his gay confident self again.

"Of course it will," she laughed back at him.

The rest of the afternoon seemed like a joyous celebration. They held hands and smiled at each other over Daphne's head as they helped her bring her doll paraphernalia up the steps. When they went down Mama Eckert turned on the lights—ugly red silk shaded lamps they were, but they cast a rosy glow. Papa Eckert put on another record, a lilting waltz.

Daphne capered about in perfect rhythm though slightly pigeon-toed, with Papa Eckert beating time for her. Paul and Amy waltzed, sometimes in the living-room, occasionally whirling into the darkness of the dining room. When they came back, Mama Eckert would sit there beaming, but pretending not to be looking at them, not to be aware that Amy's face was pink.

It was a perfect little hour. It seemed to Amy that Paul had uttered a prophecy when he had said, "It'll work out all right." And probably would have called for Amy and Daphne and set in motion a chain of events that flung their love affair on the rocks.

MILD FORWARD TENDENCY SEEN IN STOCK MART

Increase In Metal Scrap In June Reported; Tools Also Produced.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Mild forward tendencies continued for selected stocks in today's market.

Up small fractions were Bethlehem, American Telephone, North American, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Texas Co., Standard Oil (NJ), Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and General motors.

Followers of metal company securities found a grain of cheer in the bureau of mines survey estimating iron and steel scrap stocks in the hands of domestic consumers, supplies and producers increased 275,000 gross tons during June to a total of 4,859,000 tons.

A constructive indicator was seen in the war production board summary disclosing a substantial climb in machine tool production in July. The board reported that 28,300 new units with a value of $113,600,000 were shipped during the month against 26,600 in June valued at $111,100,000.

earth on the coffin containing the body of his brother.

The heavily veiled ladies of the royal family wept openly.

Queen Elizabeth stayed close by the side of the Duches of Kent, comforting her. At one time the widow was unable to get to her feet as she prayed by the side of the coffin.

Crowds thronged the streets of Windsor to watch the mourners walk from the station to the chapel. They came from far and wide, many of them spending the last few drops of their gasoline allotment to do so.

Military representation was confined to the duke's personal regiments. His personal servants were seated near the coffin.

The duke's three children were not present.

VISIT MADISON

Trucks to Tour Township Seeking Scrap Metal.

Trucks will visit homes in Madison township, beginning Monday, in the drive for scrap materials, Carl L. Stough, county salvage chairman, said today.

The salvage drive is still under way in Mansfield and calls are being received at county civilian defense headquarters at the courthouse from city residents who have scrap metal, rubber, rags, or burlap to sell or donate for use in the nation's war program. The headquarters telephone number is 3763-6.

Stough estimated that 12 tons of scrap has been collected and dumped into the bin at Central park. Collections to date in rural areas outside Mansfield total 151 tons, he said.

Receipts from all scrap that is donated go into a fund to finance going-away parties for selectees and for the purchase of Christmas gifts for Richland countains in the armed services.

U. S. SUES AP TO FORCE SALE OF WIRE SERVICE

strains and monopolizes interstate commerce in news.

Additionally, it was asserted that the acquisition by the AP in 1941 of the stock of Wide World Photos, Inc., a news-picture service formerly owned by the New York Times, was an illegal acquisition of stock of a competing corporation.

The petition asked that the Associated Press be permanently enjoined against further enforcement of the by-law provisions referred to and also required to divest itself of the Wide World stock.

Named as defendants were the Association, a non-profit cooperative incorporated in New York; the 18 members of the board of directors; the publishers of the newspapers with which the directors are affiliated, and the nearly 1,300 other members in the United States as a group. The AP serves more than 2,000 newspapers throughout the world. Only members in continental United States were named.

The government's petition for an injunction against certain by-laws—amended by the members themselves at their annual meeting last April—contended, among other things:

That news agency service is "essential to survival of any newspaper."

That there are three news agencies and "of the news services supplied by those three, that of the Associated Press ranks in the forefront in public reputation and esteem."

That "a newspaper which is barred from AP news operates under a competitive disadvantage with AP members."

The two other news services referred to are the United Press and the International News Service.

"In the mind of the general public," the government said, "the name 'Associated Press' has long been regarded as synonymous with the highest standards of accurate, nonpartisan and comprehensive news-reporting."

Amplifying its contention that the AP stands in the van of news services, the government said:

"One reason for this is that the Associated Press exceeds its competitors in expenditures for collection and transmitting news, in the length of news reports it furnishes, in physical facilities, in size of staff, in number and geographical distribution of news bureaus, in number and geographical distribution of newspapers supplying it with news of their localities and in the unique requirement hereinafter set forth that these newspapers must serve the Associated Press exclusively.

"A second reason is that the character of the organization of the Associated Press—a membership corporation composed of persons representing every shade of economic, political, and religious opinion and every section of the country—is an invaluable guarantee that the promise and claim made by each news-agency—that it presents the news without any political or sectional bias—will in fact be fulfilled."

Contending that freedom of the press would be served by making AP service available to all newspapers willing and able to share the cost of such service, the government said:

"Restraints imposed by denial of AP membership and services are particularly burdensome in that the newspaper must rely on the services of the UP (United Press) alone or as supplemented by INS (International News Service). Furthermore, it is forced to accept whatever terms are demanded by UP (United Press), the one other news-agency equipped to furnish a self-sufficient news service."

Much of the government's argument revolved about by-law provisions governing membership admissions in cases where a member already occupies the field in which an applicant publishes or proposes to publish. By "field" is meant the time of publication; that is, morning or afternoon.

Until this year, an applicant required the affirmative vote of 80 per cent of the membership to gain admission if a member in the same city and field refused to waive his right of protest.

Early this year the justice department notified the Associated Press board of directors that it regarded the exclusion of applicants, based upon no standard other than the competitive effect upon individual members, to be in violation of the anti-trust laws.

In view of that, the complaint stated, the AP membership "materially amended" the by-laws at its annual meeting in April, 1942. The government contended, however, that the amended rules only eliminated the "right of protest" same result by means even more objectionable."

AP Directors Issue Statement On Suit

NEW YORK — (AP) — The following statement of the board of directors of the Associated Press was issued by President Robert McLean today in connection with the government's anti-trust complaint:

"The Associated Press has invaded the lawful rights of no one in the great and unsurpassed service that it has rendered to the reading public for the past forty-two years. What is charged against it is no more at bottom, than this: That it seeks to protect its members who have invested their skill, their work and their money in its growth.

"The Associated Press will resist the present proceedings as without merit in law or fact."

CHAPTER XI

"Hello, my dears," Paul said. "I—"

Seeing Amy, he stood in the doorway and started. After awhile he smiled and said, "Amy—Daphne! What is this, a party? Do I smell spice cakes and coffee?"

"For heaven sake, shut the door, Paul!" Mama Eckert scolded. "The rain's coming in on the carpet."

She went to him and felt his wet hair. "Why, boy, you're soaked! Go hang your coat in the kitchen by the register. When will you learn not to go out without your rubbers!"

When he came back from the kitchen, Daphne ran to him chanting, "I've got my mother's doll, Uncle Paul. I've got my mother's doll."

"Good lord," Paul said with a sort of strained gaiety, examining the battered baby, "I used to see that thing around when I was 6 years old. Hasn't it grown up yet?"

"It's not a 'thing'," Daphne said indignantly.

Paul played with Daphne as though he were not aware of Amy, while Mama Eckert went into the kitchen again for more cakes and coffee. Amy went over and sat by Papa Eckert in the bay window, examining his records from "Lohengrin" as though she did not know Paul had come in.

But she looked up quickly when he said, "Amy."

"Look here, Amy." His eyes pled with her though his tone was gay and careless, "You've seen a lot of those records. But you haven't seen my first pictures. Think of it. Boyhood sketches by a future great landscape painter. Special preview. Come on. I want to show 'em to you."

"Yes, go on with Paul," Mama Eckert urged, ignoring Amy's indignant gaze. "I want Papa to play his 'Hansel and Gretel' records for Daphne."

Amy didn't look at Paul as they climbed the narrow, enclosed stairway to the second floor, but she could feel his nearness as though he were touching her. It was the same way in the little room at the top of the stairs. A boy's room it was, with a string of birds' nests attached to the stiff lace curtains in the dormer window, high school pennants above the desk and dance programs tucked around the mirror.

But in the widest wall space, where the light would strike them, hung several oil paintings, vivid, amateurish, strong. And a water color of a boy about 12 years old. The unruly hair was too black and one eye was a little off, but the expression of the mouth with the dimples at the corners which gave the impression of a half smile, was good.

"Self portrait," Amy said with a little quaver in her voice.

Paul faced her gravely. "You didn't give me a fair chance. You passed judgment on me—"

"I didn't pass judgment. You told me the facts," she said stiffly. "And anyway it isn't my affair."

"It is your affair. I love you."

"You can't be in love with two women at the same time."

"I'm not in love with two women. You're the only woman I've ever loved. You know that, Amy . . . You do know it, don't you?" he demanded softly.

She supposed she did. She was having a hard time remembering all the things she had been thinking about him during the past three days.

But she managed to say, "You let Marcia pay for your education. You let her support you."

"I did not."

"But you told me—"

"I did not. I said she paid for it. But I didn't say I let her."

"I—I don't understand," she faltered.

"Marcia's father had created, in his will, a fund to furnish scholarships for students. That was before I met Marcia. I met her at an art ball."

"And she looked lovely and you smiled and were sweet to her," Amy put in bitterly.

"I don't know what you mean," he said, looking as innocent as the boy in the self portrait.

"I don't suppose you do," she admitted. "You couldn't help it."

"If you mean I couldn't help her giving me the money, you're right. I hardly knew Marcia when I got a notification from the committee in charge of the Fairbairne fund for scholarships that I had been selected as the art student to receive three years' study in Europe."

"Oh," Amy cried. "Then it wasn't Marcia herself." She sat down suddenly on the narrow little iron bed. She'd carried such a heavy load that she felt weak when it was removed all of a sudden.

He came and stood in front of her speaking angrily, almost as if he were scolding her. "It was Marcia herself! Her father hadn't left any fund for art students. And she was 'interested' in me. Marcia's always getting 'interested' in people—not always men, sometimes women, sometimes children—and doing things for them. It's her hobby. Only this time she exceeded herself! She took the money for my education from her private fortune. And she wheedled her trustees into letting me think it came from her father's scholarship fund."

"But that was taking unfair advantage!"

"Of course it was," he said grimly. "And I was such a fool. I didn't know until I'd lived in Paris three years, working so hard—I was so proud that the committee had chosen me. I wanted to make good—to prove to them I was worth it. And probably they were despising me all that time! As I told you before, she paid for everything I had. I didn't have a cent of my own—my clothes even—my cigarets! Also that trip to Cuba when I had to leave Paris because of war conditions. And I didn't find it out until I met one of her father's associates on the boat coming home. He thought I knew. I suppose other people thought so too! I suppose everyone but me knew!"

For a moment she couldn't share his bitterness. For Paul was restored to her. Paul, dear and appealing and sincere—just as she'd thought he was when she first met him, just as she should have known all along. She'd been mean and small and silly. And she'd hurt him. She rose. In another moment she'd have been in his arms. Then she remembered something, something bigger and more important than anything he had said yet.

"But you're engaged to Marcia. You—you must have asked her to marry you."

There was silence in the little room while the rain struck its tiny hammers against the window.

Then he said rebelliously, "I did. But I love you."

"But you must have loved Marcia if you asked her to marry you." She felt like a cross-questioning little school teacher, but she had to go on. She had to get it settled. "At least you must have thought you loved her."

"I didn't know what love was. I was thrown with Marcia a lot in the two months when I was getting ready to go to Europe. She was an old friend of Guy's and he and Frani had her at the house a lot. She was so interested in my plans—and my work. It was the first time I'd had another person all taken up with what I was trying to do."

"The woman tempted me," she mocked.

"Amy!" His black eyebrows drew together stormily. "Why can't you understand? Or try to? Plenty of men have been engaged to the wrong woman. Plenty of girls have been engaged to the wrong man for that matter. We all make mistakes. Look at Guy. You'd say he was an infallible person if there ever was one. He thought he loved Frani. He was so sure of it that he married her. And now he doesn't love her."

In the intensity of the moment his revelations about Guy and Frani made no impression upon Amy.

"I suppose you're right," she said in a voice that was desolate in spite of her. "But how long—I mean was it before you went to Europe—all this time? But I haven't any right to ask that."

"I'd rather you did. I was sick in Paris—the second year I was there. I had the flu. Queer, but I was so sick I thought I'd never get well. I was completely knocked out, and I was all alone. Marcia was in Europe. And she came . . . now I suppose you'll say again, 'the woman tempted me.' She didn't. It was just—just—"

"I know. I didn't mean to pry. Marcia's a lovely person."

"She's a swell person . . . Gosh this is a mess! I don't see how we're going to get out of it."

"We can't," she said swiftly.

"We've got to," he declared. "You certainly don't want me to go on with Marcia now?"

"I'd hate it if you did. And if you married her I'd . . . I'd . . . I don't know what I'd do! But you can't just go to Marcia and tell her. You can't possibly."

He looked surprised. Then he bent his head and stood staring down at the red and green ingrain carpet.

"No, I can't."

"Uncle Paul! Tudor!" The voice was Daphne's and it was followed by a thumping and bumping on the stairs. "I'm bringing my doll. Help me get my doll and cradle upstairs."

Mechanically Amy answered, "Wait a moment, Daphne. I'm coming."

LUCY! THAT'S NO PLACE TO LAY YOUR EGGS! THAT HOUSE MAY BE HAUNTED!
IF SHE THINKS I'M GOING TO FOLLOW HER, SHE'S CRAZY! SHE CAN KEEP HER OLD EGGS. I'M GOING HOME!
FORGRAVE
COURSE, I DIDN'T GET ANY EGGS. LUCY IS LAYING THEM IN THAT OLD HERMITS HOUSE!
WELL, SILLY! WHY DIDN'T YOU GO IN AND GET THEM? NOBODY LIVES THERE ANYMORE!
8-25
WHAT? BY MYSELF? NO, THIR! THAT HOUSE MAY BE HAUNTED!
AW! YOU AND YOUR HAUNTED HOUSES! THERE'S NO SUCH THING AS HAUNTS AND YOU KNOW IT.

A FEW DROPS OF WATER WON'T HURT US. NOW, IS THAT THE HOUSE YOU ARE SO AFRAID OF?

IT WILL TAKE A LOT MORE THAN THAT TO SCARE ME!
YOW!
BLAM
FORGRAVE
I TOLD YOU IT WAS GOING TO RAIN!
YES, AND BLOW, TOO. LET'S GET INSIDE THAT SHACK, BEFORE WE GET SOAKED!

WITH THIS WIND AND ALL IT DOES LOOK SCARY. I DON'T KNOW WHETHER TO GO IN OR NOT!
OH, MY GOSH! WHAT'S THAT?
WHAM
FORGRAVE
NOW THAT WE'RE IN HERE, WE'LL STAY TILL THE STORM IS OVER!
WHAT'S THAT?
8-28
WHAT'S WHAT?
THAT THING WAVING AT US BACK THERE IN THE GLOOM!
I DON'T KNOW AND I'VE GOT NO TIME TO FIND OUT!
ME NEITHER!
Copr 1942 King Features Syndicate Inc, World rights reserved
FORGRAVE
I THOUGHT YOU SAID THAT OLD HOUSE WASN'T HAUNTED!
WA-ALL! WHO SAYS IT IS?
8-29
I NOTICED YOU BEAT ME OUT OF THERE WHEN THAT THING WAVED ITSELF AT US.
I WAS JUST GETTING OUT OF YOUR ROAD, SO YOU WOULDN'T TRAMPLE ME TO DEATH.

I'M NOT SCARED THAT EASILY. I'M GOING TO SEE WHAT THAT WAS.
I 'THPECT I'D BETTER GO WITH YOU!
